TOWN OF ULSTER

A powerful crackdown on narcotics pushers that authorities said was a crippling blow to distribution of dangerous drugs in Ulster County today brought about the arrest of more than 40 persons during the greatest massive raids ever conducted in this area.

Two men branded by top police officials as "king pins" in the distribution of narcotics in this county, were among those apprehended in the predawn well coordinated raids. They were identified by investigators as Willie James London, who gave his address as Johnson Road, New Paltz, and Richard "Slick" Williams, who was in the county jail when arrested.

The investigation which began last September was directed by District Attorney Joseph P. Torraca, Major John W. Monahan, commander of Troop F of the State Police in cooperation with Kingston Police Chief Francis Fagan, Sheriff William B. Martin and New Paltz Chief Nicholas Pape.

The agencies had pooled all information related to the inquiry in order to assure thoroughness and efficiency. Approximately 40 purchases of narcotic drugs were made during the investigation resulting in arrest warrants.

15 in One House

One raiding party armed with a search warrant swooped down on a two-story residence at 60 Church Street, expecting to make a seizure of drugs and make a few arrests. Police found 15 persons in the house and took them all into custody on a variety of charges.

Additional arrests are expected. It was reported that two men indicted on charges of criminal sale of dangerous drugs had left the state in the last few days. Most of those sought were found in the raids that were made simultaneously at 6 a.m.

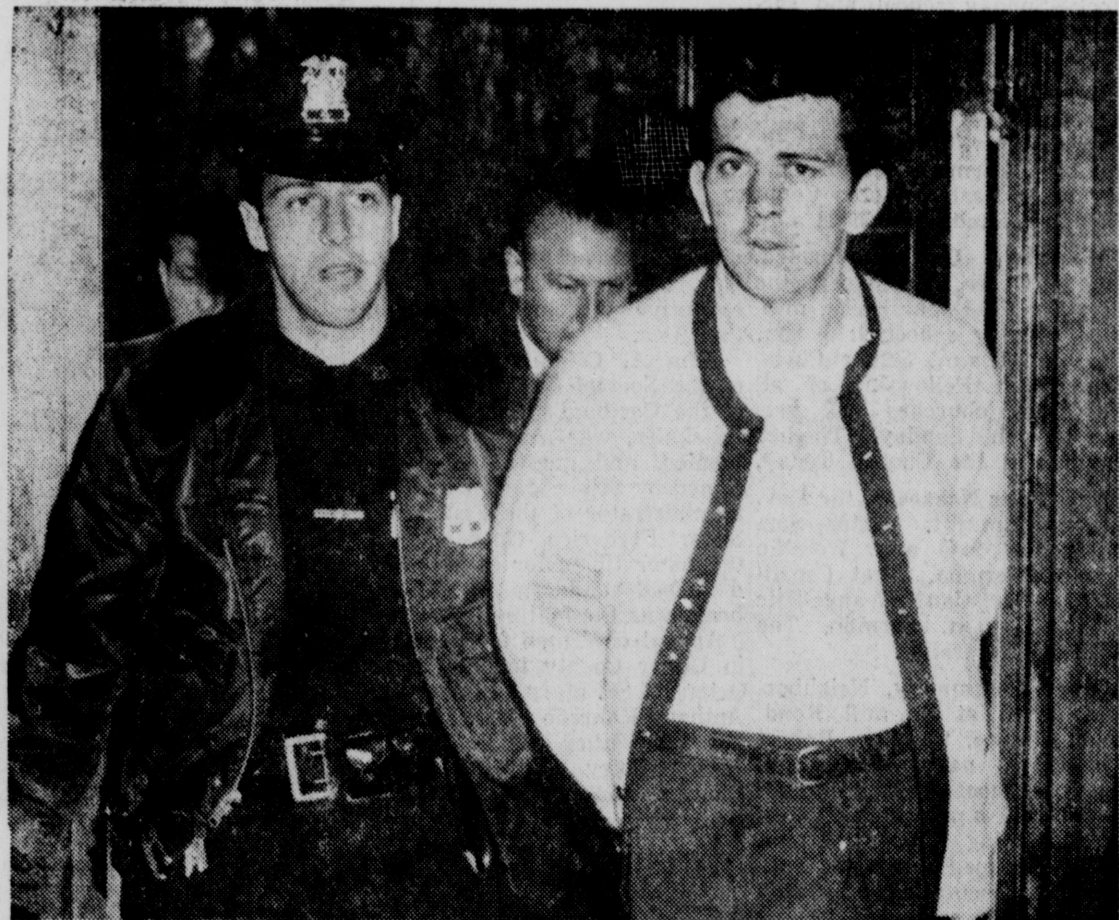

A majority of those apprehended were of the hippie type, men and women some in their teens and others in their early 20's. When questioned at Lake Katrine Grange Hall by state police officers, many of the defendants asked whether they should give their present address or that of their parents.

Some were identified as students at State University College at New Paltz. One youth is a student at New Paltz High School, and two were described as college dropouts.

Seized during the raids was an undetermined quantity of dangerous narcotic drugs and implements.

TOWN OF ULSTER

What goes into a series of widespread drug arrests? This morning's raid in Ulster County took authorities seven months to prepare.

The sweeping investigation conducted by the district attorney's office and three police agencies reached its climax with a roundup of narcotics pushers including some women and the apprehension of others who possessed dangerous drugs.

Ninety men from State Police headquarters of Troop F in Middletown, Kingston and New Paltz police, the sheriff's office and the full staff of District Attorney Joseph P. Torraca moved to their assigned locations before dawn after thorough briefing by key personnel at Lake Katrine Grange Hall.

Armed with bench and search warrants, the raiding parties went to New Paltz, Rosendale, Port Jervis, Highland, Modena and in several parts of Kingston and waited until the 6 a. m. signal when they carried out the task of arrests and seizures of dangerous drugs.

Many of those taken into custody were of the hippie-type, beards, long hair and moustaches, and their clothing was typical of the attire that seems to add contentment to young people of that type.

The police activity moved along in excellent clock-like activity. Each man had his instructions and legal papers to pursue the assignment. Each group was assigned a leader.

Thoroughly Coordinated

The series of raids had been thoroughly coordinated by top officials of the State Police, the district attorney's office, and the staffs of the county sheriff and city and New Paltz police departments.

A large number of those taken into custody were aroused from their sleep. Others reportedly were taking part in some form of drugs use, authorities said.

All forms of dangerous drugs were noted in the stack of materials confiscated by the raiders, including marijuana, heroin, hashish, LSD and other narcotics. Some implements used to administer the drugs were seized.

Most of the persons arrested were taken into custody on bench warrants issued after a grand jury completed its current investigation and returned a batch of sealed indictments, named the accused. Some were charged with as many as 15 counts involving criminal sale of drugs.

The drugs involved comprised mostly those that had been purchased by undercover agents. These drugs will be produced as evidence against the accused sellers.

State Police Lt. George Dirschka of Troop F, who was in command of the troopers and other police, told newsmen that undercover BCI investigators of the state police were employed during the investigation for the purpose of identifying the distributors of narcotics in the area.

Dressed Like Hippies

The undercover agents dressed like hippies, wore sandals and clothing that would conceal their identity. They attended parties to gain confidence of those under suspicion. They underwent frisking by others in the groups and they used assumed names at parties that were featured by smoking narcotics and other means of administering drugs to "take a trip."

The investigators indicated to others that they were using the drugs along with the hippies attending the parties. The long-haired, bearded BCI agents, mingled with the groups as they watched the young men and women going through all sorts of unbelievable actions brought on by the effects of the drugs. Through these parties the undercover men gained confidence of the users who directed them to the pushers in the area. The pushers sold the narcotics and drugs at profitable prices.

The identity of the pushers was established through long and sometime dangerous situations faced by the BCI investigators. During the inquiry the undercover men learned of the hatred that existed on the part of those in the illicit drugs business against police agencies, and often serious threats were made by the users of the narcotics.

Some of the raiders commented that as police vehicles of the users who directed them to the pushers in the area. The pushers sold the narcotics and drugs at profitable prices.

The procedure of conducting the individual visits to the apartments and homes of those sought in connection with the investigation, moved slowly as some of the people wanted were visiting elsewhere, but eventually they were located and taken here for processing.

Rockefeller Faces Decision On State Anti-Busing Bill

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller now must decide whether to follow up on his stated disapproval and veto a bill that would restrict busing of pupils for purposes of integrating public schools.

The Senate dumped the thorny issue into Rockefeller's lap by giving final legislative approval Friday to a measure designed to prohibit so-called forced busing.

Rockefeller has said publicly that he opposed the bill's intent, which would reverse the policy pursued since 1963 by State Education Commissioner James E. Allen Jr.

Have Alternate

Even if Rockefeller vetoes the bill—as some Republicans expect—busing foes still have an alternate way to accomplish their goal.

In addition to voting for the Assembly-passed bill Friday, the Senate gave initial approval to a proposed constitutional amendment containing basically the same provisions.

New Yorkers could count today on four extra, long holiday weekends beginning in 1971. Story on Page 18.

Unlike regular bills, proposed changes in the State Constitution do not go to the governor's desk. Instead, they become law by being approved by two separately elected legislatures and by the voters in a referendum.

Advocates of the proposals were divided at times over whether to push for the busing bill alone, or for both the bill and the amendment.

The bill—some Republican supporters argued—would take effect in time for the next school year, if Rockefeller did sign it.

The amendment, on the other hand, could not go before the voters earlier than November 1971.

Some proponents of the plan noted a disadvantage of having both—the possibility that Rockefeller would veto the bill with the explanation that the voters should decide when the amendment came up in the 1971 election.

Wanted Approval

Supporters of the amendment said they wanted to get the initial approval this year, on the assumption that Rockefeller would veto the bill in any case.

It was against this background that both measures reached the Senate floor.

The bill was passed, 36-16, and the amendment, 38-14.

Church Scholars See Many Changes Ahead

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A shrinkage in the church's monolithic forms... the growth of varied, unofficial Christian movements... a fading of denominationalism... increasing social involvement... sharpened theological thought and awareness of God's sovereignty.

These are coming characteristics of Christianity by the end of the century as foreseen by a number of leading church scholars.

Looking ahead for the next 25 years, some of them also offer differing assessments and uncertainties, where the pendulum could swing either way. Most expect a decline in bulk membership, but intensified quality and disciplined life styles.

Among other varying predictions:

—An overshadowing atmosphere of technology and secularization, which will both reduce religion's popular appeal, yet clarify the nature of its demands and values.

—A potential alienation of the church's predominant middle class membership.

—A maturing social commitment, yet as physical goals are met, a turn toward greater intellectual-theological concerns.

—A rising tide of so-called "underground" churches or informal, unofficial religious movements alongside trimmed-down institutional structures.

—A "church in diaspora." Several analysts have projected it, in a phrase coined by German Catholic theologian Karl Rahner, foreseeing a future when present downward statistical trends have reduced Christianity to a smaller, scattered minority.

"Massive church blocks will be gone, eroded," says the Rev. Dr. Johannes C. Hoekendijk, a Dutch Reformed theologian, of New York's Union Seminary. "There will be fewer and fewer related to church life... There will be also this whole trend to the 'underground church'."

He and others offered their predictions in the current issue of World Outlook, a Methodist journal in a special issue on "Mission in the Year 2000."

Many of their expectations parallel those voiced increasingly by many church thinkers in this country and abroad.

"Secularization will continue," says Dr. Peter L. Berger, a Lutheran lay theologian and sociologist of the New School for Social Research here, making for fewer "religious people," yet putting the religious challenge in sharper focus.

"There are both fortunate and unfortunate aspects to secularization," he says.

Its negative effect is to obscure "religious entities," causing a "certain loss of reality," he says. "People become closed to reality and to aspects of their own experience. There is a trivialization of mystery, of ecstasy and awe, and a resulting impoverishment."

Yet at the same time, he says, secularization eliminates the tendency for religion to "be taken for granted; it is not part of the accepted baggage. Secularization forces people to make choices and makes for a better situation in which to confront the religious options clearly."

The Rev. Dr. Albert Outler, of Methodism's Perkins School of Theology in Dallas, says the modern secular preoccupations of the church may be running down.

"It would seem to me that we are at the point now where we have shot our wad in trying to play 'world' and we might recognize that the church has a distinctive role..." he says. "There is a need for theologizing, for worship, and most of all for a disciplined style of life."

With the current overwhelming emphasis on social action, he says he fears the church may "be in the process of losing its middle-class constituency... They are generally fed up with the general disposition of the church to scold them rather than to minister to them."

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

Martin Luther, the German leader of the Protestant Reformation, while still a young student found a sentence in the New Testament that became his life's doctrine. "... The just shall live by faith." (Romans 1, 17).

It served him well during his difficult life. An Augustinian monk and a Doctor of Divinity, Luther was professor of Theology and district vicar at the University of Wittenberg when he realized he could not accept some of the actions of the church. He did not approve of money being offered for indulgences being granted by the Pope. He made his objections public by nailing his protest to the door of All Saints Church at Wittenberg.

The protest became famous as the Ninety-Five Theses. It was not his intention to break away from the church—only to bring about reforms. He wrote three pamphlets making known his beliefs, which brought about his being banned by the Pope. At the Diet of Worms in 1521 he was condemned by the Emperor as a heretic. Luther spent 10 months under the protection of his good friend Frederick, Elector of Saxony at the castle of the Wartburg. There he translated the New Testament from the original Greek to German. Upon his return to Wittenberg the rest of his life was spent actively reforming the new church, setting up a new church government. He introduced singing by the congregation and wrote many great hymns of faith.

Martin Luther, against great odds, lived by his faith. He wrote, "Faith is not a human dream of illusion. Faith is God's work within us. It transmutates us and makes for our rebirth in God."

Preservation of Deer: Sipperly Plea

RED HOOK
Madison Sipperly, District Five representative to the Dutchess County Board of Representatives argued for deer preservation Thursday in a note to the Agriculture Committee.

He said: "It has been called to the attention of representatives from the suburban and rural areas that the past winter has resulted in extreme hardship and starvation for much of the deer population in Dutchess County. The crust-covered snow can be considered the prime reason for these hardships but there were also secondary reasons, such as the overabundance of deer in certain areas and wild dogs."

Sipperly went on to urge the Board to take some action of its own in order to prevent a repetition of the past winter, outlining three steps.

"First, elimination of wild dog packs which attack deer and other livestock through stricter enforcement of dog ordinances. Some people have advocated a wild dog bounty or a dog quarantine during deer hunting season in the critical areas."

"Second, implementation of a proper grain feeding program during the winter, which has already been started by some game clubs in Dutchess County."

"And third, the possibility of emergency funds to initiate a grain feeding program in critical areas where there is an over-abundance of deer."

Sipperly also mentioned possibility of the Board making recommendations for action to the state, such as longer hunting season in certain areas of the county to keep the deer herds within a reasonable size.

"Now that spring is here, we shouldn't allow ourselves to forget about past problems without taking some action to be prepared for future winters and the preservation of deer in Dutchess County," he finished.

Sipperly has received the endorsement of the Red Hook-Rhinebeck Republicans to run for another term on the county board in November.

Ambassador Program Is Formed in Red Hook

RED HOOK
A group of Red Hook parents have organized the "Red Hook Teenage Ambassador Program."

Purpose of the group is to encourage students to visit and study in a foreign country as representatives of their community.

Mary Kelly will serve as chairman, Barbara Heineck will direct fund-raising projects, and Jacqueline Holsapple is secretary.

Nancy Sargent addressed the committee and described the schedule and itinerary planned for the students planning to visit Mexico this summer.

The students will leave Red Hook July 31, board an Eastern Airlines jet at Kennedy Airport, and proceed to Mexico. Upon arrival they will be escorted to Spanish homes where they will be welcomed as a member of the family.

They will attend the Universal Ibero-Americana for three weeks as matriculating students and will receive three college credits upon completion of the course.

There will be excursions and visits to places of interest, including a bullfight and a brief stay at Acapulco. The students are expected to return Aug. 28.

Students will be accompanied by Mrs. Sargent and her husband.

As an initial project to assist the program there will be a food sale outside the Red Hook Grand Union from 9 a.m. to 12 noon Saturday.

INCREASED DUTIES — Legislative aide, William Merrill's duties in Albany have increased sharply with the legislature coming into its closing sessions. Merrill (R) shown with Assemblyman H. Clark Bell is now preparing floor debate and assisting the assemblymen on the floor. Merrill calls it a "wonderful experience" witnessing and taking part in the working sessions of the New York State Assembly. A tireless worker during Bell's campaigns, the assemblyman credits Merrill with his ability for paying great attention to detailed work. Merrill attended Kingston Schools and is a graduate of Trinity Pawling School and Springfield College.

RESIGNS POST — The White House reported that William J. Driver, director of the Veterans Administration since 1964, has resigned. The White House press office said only that the resignation had reached President Nixon, and did not indicate when or whether Nixon would accept it. Driver told the President he was resigning for personal reasons. However, his supporters on Capitol Hill contend he had been forced out, not by Nixon, who wanted to keep him, but by Sen. Everett Dirksen. The GOP Senate leader has been in the forefront of a drive to put Republicans in all top government posts. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Commissioners Reject All 3 Police Car Bids

KINGSTON

All three bids received for six Kingston police cars were rejected at a meeting of the Board of Police Commissioners. The board agreed to reject all bids because they did not meet specifications.

It was also agreed that the commissioners would readvertise for additional bids at a date to be announced. Specifications may be secured at police headquarters at any time, according to Police Chief Francis Fagan.

Massive Narcotics ...

cluded an extensive investigation by a grand jury into the narcotics traffic in Ulster County including Kingston. About a week ago a batch of sealed indictments came before County Judge Raymond J. Mino, who issued arrest warrants and legal papers for searching at least five residences.

The largest seizure of defendants was made at 60 Church Street, New Paltz, where 15 were taken into custody. The detail of officers assigned to that location called for assistance to round up the group who were accused of charges involving drugs.

Those arrested at that address were identified as: Stephen Purcell, 20, of 117 Anthony Place, Muncie, Ind.; Peter R. Jule, Rosedale; Gregory V. Button, 23, Richard Allen Olmstead, 22; Thomas R. Farre, 22; Ronald D. Whitters, 25; Elaine M. Swan, 19; Susanne Swan, 22, and Barbara M. Faati, 24, all of 60 Church Street; Jean P. Barney, 20, of Troy; Denise Passmore, 18, of New York City; Nicholas P. Carluk, 18, of Broadalyn; Frank L. Beasley, 23, of Franklin, Tenn.; Carl Fiordilino, 18, of Millwood Road, New Paltz; and Roelof Vel, 18, of 195 Main Street, Kingston.

Others listed on the partial report of arrests included: Charles Naccarato, Rosendale; criminally selling dangerous drugs and criminal possession of dangerous drugs; David W. Schobert, 19, New Paltz, criminal sale and possession of dangerous drugs; Larnel Barber, 26, of Ann Street, Kingston, sale and possession; Benny Bevier, no address, 15 counts of criminal sale and possession of dangerous drugs, second, third and fourth degree; Furman Watson, 21, of Route 32, Modena, criminal sale and possession.

Three in New York
State Police officials said more arrests are expected based on indictments returned by the grand jury on charges of criminal sale and possession of dangerous drugs.

County Investigator Thomas Mayone of the district attorney's office, BCI Investigator Jerry Zappolo, County Investigator Harold Bowers, and key investigators of the State Police BCI, Det. Sgt. Lemuel Howard of Kingston, and other officials with uniformed and plainclothesmen, figured prominently in gathering evidence and information that led to today's raids.

A high state police official said, "Many of the purchases by the undercover agents were of the hard drug, heroin, and the arrest of the dealers will undoubtedly serve to severely curtail the distribution of the drugs in the areas concerned for some time." He added, "the same conclusion would apply to the other drugs."

Authorities expected to release later a complete, detailed list of those arrested, and the extent of the quantity of narcotics and implements confiscated in the raids.

Grady's decision said simply that the court "will not interfere with the defendant's (Vassar College) discretion."

"Private colleges and universities are governed on the principle of academic self-regulation, free from judicial restraint," he said.

"It is the privilege of the college, through its student government association, to promulgate and enforce rules and regulations for the social conduct of students without judicial interference," Grady concluded.

Mrs. Jones said later that Grady had ignored applications and protest letters from parents of Vassar students and "his decision was one sided." She added that she and her lawyer husband would appeal the decision.

The case came before Justice W. Vincent Grady earlier this year on a petition by Poughkeepsie attorney A.D. Jones, the father of a freshman Vassar girl.

Jones, and his wife, Edna, contended that the exclusive woman's school did not show proper discretion in opening its dormitories to male visitors 24 hours a day.

The Jones maintained that girls should not be forced into a social situation which might compel them to have male visitors at any time. They claimed this would put the girls under too much discretionary pressure.

Vassar students, which now include some men, did not think this was so. On March 5, the student Senate voted to give each quarter of the school's dormitories the authority to make up their own minds about nocturnal coeducational visits. The student body subsequently voted 1,433 to 58 for open dormitories.

Court Upholds Vassar On Dormitory Rulings

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y. (UPI) — A State Supreme Court Justice decided Friday that Poughkeepsie College is competent to determine its own dormitory regulations.

The case came before Justice W. Vincent Grady earlier this year on a petition by Poughkeepsie attorney A.D. Jones, the father of a freshman Vassar girl.

Jones, and his wife, Edna, contended that the exclusive woman's school did not show proper discretion in opening its dormitories to male visitors 24 hours a day.

MRS. DENNIS W. LONGENDYKE
(Lakeside Studio)

Phillips—Longendyke

Old Dutch Church, Kingston, was the setting for the wedding of Miss Margaret-Ann Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin C. Phillips of 16 Florence Street, Kingston, to Dennis Wayne Longendyke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Longendyke of 12 Alcazar Avenue, this city, on Saturday, April 5.

The Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool officiated at the double ring ceremony. Miss Cindy Jones, organist, provided traditional wedding selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a sheath gown caged in organza. Venice lace accented the bodice and encircled the wide Peau hem which terminated in a chapel train. Her stand-up forward cap, trimmed with pearls and crystals, was framed with tiers of English silk illusion, and she carried a cascade bouquet of carnations.

Miss Jean Helrigel of New Jersey was maid of honor for her cousin. She wore a lime-wist nylon organza gown styled with Swiss lace daisies at the Sabrina neckline, featuring short sleeves, a raised waistline, and loose flowing back panel. A petal cap centered with daisies served as her headpiece and she carried a bouquet of lime and white carnations.

Attendants were Mrs. Gwen Rossi, sister of the bridegroom, Kingston; and Miss Kathleen Houlihan, cousin of the bride, High Falls. Their gowns were identical in styling to that of the honor attendant in orchid and aqua, respectively, with bouquets of orchid and white and aqua and white carnations.

Miss Gail Platzner, cousin of the bride, Port Ewen, was flower girl. Her yellow gown was styled similarly to those of the other attendants and she wore a matching ripple bow trimmed with daisies, and carried a bouquet of white, lime, orchid and aqua carnations.

James Longendyke, brother of the bridegroom, Kingston, was best man. Ushers were Eugene Longendyke, brother of the bridegroom, and Keith Rossi, nephew of the bridegroom, both of Kingston. Joseph Longendyke, Kingston, nephew of the bridegroom, served as ringbearer.

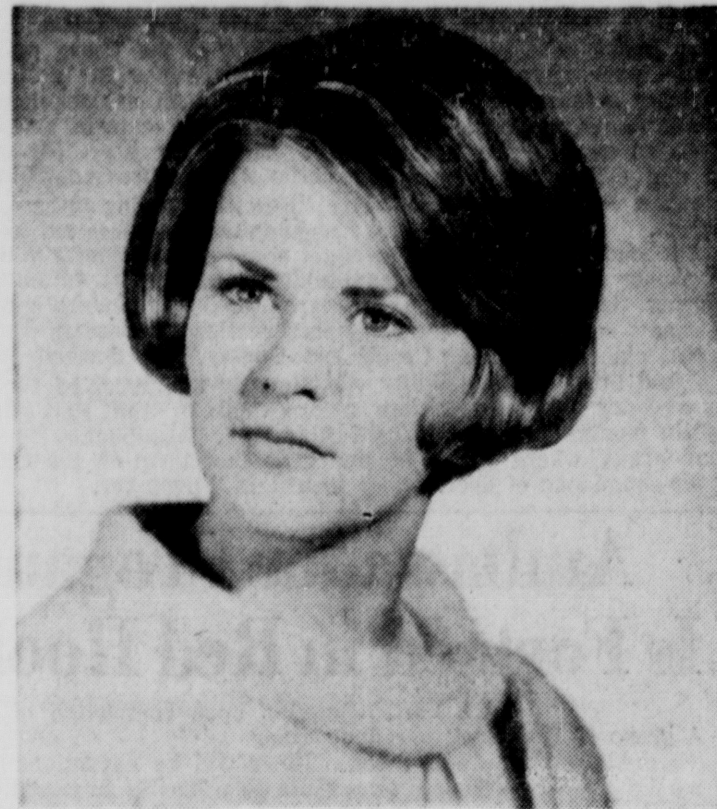

After the wedding, a reception for 125 guests was held at the Moose Lodge, 82 Prince Street, Kingston.

For her wedding trip the bride selected a blue traveling suit with white accessories.

Head Start Disappoints

Head Start has been perhaps the most widely admired program that evolved from the anti-poverty campaign. Supporters in and out of Congress regard it as the one most useful development in educating the disadvantaged. It gave youngsters from poor homes a chance to compete with the more advantaged, so they believed.

Under contract with the Office of Economic Opportunity, which administers Head Start, the Westinghouse Learning Corporation and Ohio University made the most comprehensive study both of how Head Start works and how others of the same age and surroundings compared with them. The finding is, to say the least, disappointing.

In all but one test, Head Start children were found to have made no significant advance over the control group that did not have the same advantages. And in the one exception, the advance by Head Start was shown only among those who attended year-round classes, not just work in summer.

Even though the children who attend Head Start are only three or four years old, it was found that the program comes too late to do them much good. Poor children have been so badly damaged in infancy by their lower class environment, it was found Head Start cannot make much difference.

The report had been disturbing the White House staff before it was released to Congress, where it is bound to create deep controversy. For it was the one program in the costly war on poverty that was believed to have been worth its cost, and now this is doubtful.

The search for ways to find more effective programs and techniques for remediating the effect of poverty on disadvantaged children should continue. But Head Start does not seem to be worth the money and effort expended on it. It should be shifted to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, as President Nixon has already proposed, where there are supportive resources which could be used, perhaps, to make it work.

Sea and Air Power

The Soviet Union is looking ahead to a prolonged East-West crisis and laying its plans carefully for it, according to a defense analysis entitled "The Soviet Threat to Europe" by Alastair Buchan, director of the authoritative Institute for Strategic Studies in London.

The British have seen the Soviets assemble a 50-vessel fleet in the Mediterranean, including 14 submarines, the largest number of undersea craft ever deployed in that sea. They have seen other naval movements around the British Isles, fanning out to the seven seas. Buchan has drawn some dangerous conclusions from this activity.

The Soviet Union has apparently deployed its big submarine fleet for worldwide harassment in case of an East-West crisis, Buchan believes. The Soviet has about 380 submarines, more than the United States and its North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies combined. Of these, 88 can fire missiles while submerged.

Added to Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird's expressed conviction that the Soviet is preparing a "first strike" nuclear missile capability, this analysis of its intentions with a buildup of sea power is most disturbing. It is reminiscent of the Hitler-Stalin pact with which Stalin bought time to prepare his defense for Hitler's invasion. It behooves us to watch carefully what is behind Soviet offers to negotiate for arms reduction.

Relief Adjustments

In 1967, Congress required that state welfare benefits be proportionately adjusted to reflect changes in living costs, to keep states eligible for federal matching aid to dependent children. Now two years and a new administration later, the changes must be made by July 1.

Average payments for each person in a given welfare category for the states and territories reported by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, as of last December, come to $69.50 for old age, $92.15 for the blind, $82.55 for disabled and $42 for dependent children. In December, 8,892,000 received relief in programs aided by federal grants, of whom 6,080,000 were children, 2,028,000 aged, 703,000 disabled and 80,700 blind.

Mary E. Switzer, chief federal welfare administrator, favors some sort of national standard for relief recipients to equalize the financial burden between states. She hopes this can be achieved before July 1, when living cost adjustments are due. It would simplify things, but also it would add a great deal to the federal share of relief payments at a time when economy is the watchword.

President Nixon waved aside the bitterness former President Truman expressed against him the 50s, when he stopped off at Independence, Mo., to visit his old predecessor. The two buried the hatchet in a show of amity no one could have foreseen a few months ago.

Hippies Are to Be Pitied

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

The college hippies who took over the Harvard Yard are, by and large, an arrogant crowd. They seem to regard youth itself as some kind of an achievement, something of which they can be proud and should be praised.

Here and elsewhere, look at our youth in their uniform of conformity following a life of drift and words. What can you feel, except pity? Surely, nobody with any experience in life could feel anything else for such waste, for such tragic blindness to the only values in life that can conceivably bring happiness, security and any real sense of contribution.

They say that "bad laws" ought to be broken and that the violator should decide which laws are bad. They even expect you to take such convenient nonsense seriously. Is the dissenting youth or any other citizen who wants to call a law unjust or immoral entitled to live by his own view? If so, by what authority? The name for this, of course, is anarchy.

They show no conscience when it comes to clubbing policemen, throwing urine bags at the dean or president, destroying property and imposing by violence anti-academic conditions on our universities. Yet they talk about being "an aristocracy of conscience" (whatever that means) and about the autonomy of the individual.

Throughout all time there have been people who serve their own convenience, or cowardice, or selfishness, or something by dressing up these shabby weaknesses in the clothes of a higher cause. Yet it should be obvious that no democratic society can accommodate such claims and no other society would care enough about the rights of a nonconformist to consider it.

What a really fraudulent bunch of so-called thinkers they are — and so are their buddy-buddy professors who join them.

They talk about our country as if this greatest nation in the world were a substandard orphanage. Being sick themselves, their premise is that American society is sick to the core. What core? They are the core of nothing. Their essential immaturity shows up on all sides. I do not know what goes on in their heads, but certainly it is not thinking. They are merely being used by those whose program is not to compose but an annihilate; not to reconcile but to crush; not to build but to destroy.

This column mentioned not long ago seeing a militant clique at the University of Miami which, borrowing the vicious nonsense from the degenerate Zero Dimension Group in Japan, boasted that it can reach the true nature of things through pornography. Nearly all these destroyers were on the campus at the taxpayers' expense. Don't the university authorities have some duty to throw them out?

At Berkeley, California, I say the "soul" brothers and sisters of these Harvard Yard and Miami hippies run up the flags of the Soviet Union, Castro's Cuba, Red China and North Vietnam. What nation is it that is protecting them? Under the flags of nations they would be shot dead, and on the spot.

You always have more respect for the other fellow once you have tried to do his job. Whose job have they tried to do? Mere complaining is the world's greatest unskilled occupation. The reaction is inescapable; deep in their hearts they're really afraid — afraid — to compete. They're afraid to compete in life; they're even afraid to compete in college. Have you noticed how few go out for any kind of competitive athletics?

What they should be taught to remember about education and its institutions in general is the primary meaning of the word "education." It is "to draw out." A fundamental principle of education should be to teach the meaning of excellence, the first rate; to instruct the student that it is his business to learn what is first rate and to pursue it — not only in the job or profession by which he earns his living but in all the great fields of life and, above all, in living.

It is hard to tell who is more to blame for this mess in Harvard Yard and elsewhere — the tragic students or their twisted buddy-buddy faculty members who are failing to teach them to think.

Meanwhile, however, he had sent a personal message to the Kremlin, and Secretary Rogers had also spoke to Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin. This brought immediate cooperation from Russian destroyers and search planes in trying to locate the downed crew of the Navy plane. At the same time, it imposed some problems for Nixon.

He had to decide, in addition to the other alternatives, whether he wanted to alienate Russian good will by adopting tough retaliatory tactics toward North Korea.

There has been an amazing change on the part of the Soviet Union in regard to espionage flights. Both the United States and Russia conduct them, and have done so ever since the end of the war. However, the Russian attitude toward the United States has changed drastically since 1958 when Nikita Khrushchev gave orders to Soviet pilots to shoot down without warning any American planes near the Soviet frontier.

RB-47 Incident
It was during this unfriendly period between the USA and the USSR that Russia shot down the RB-47 naval flier, July 2, 1960. They were on a reconnaissance trip out of England over the Baltic, and penetrated Soviet air space over the Barents Sea in the vicinity of the Kola Peninsula.

Two of the fliers who were rescued were the subject of controversy by the U.S. and Russia for some time.

National Party Lines Are Badly Frayed in Deep South

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

NEA Washington Correspondent

JACKSON, Miss.—(NEA)—Major party politics in Alabama and Mississippi, the two most strongly oriented Deep South states, are in the worst tangle in modern history.

Though they are a part of what once was called the Democratic Solid South, neither state has given its full electoral vote for a Democratic presidential nominee since 1956. Neither has been on the winning side since Franklin Roosevelt's 4th victory in 1944.

The facts and conclusions in this report are based on an extensive, two-week tour of the two states which included scores of interviews with political leaders, legislators and editors.

On the Democratic front, Alabama waits breathlessly to see what George Wallace will do. Should he run for and win the governorship again in 1970, most observers think he would keep the state out of the party's national mainstream for half a decade more.

In Mississippi there is no need to wait. Gov. John Bell Williams' "regulators," opposing a Negro-led loyalist group recognized by the national party, are the most bitterly alienated Democrats in the country. A factional collision is in the making.

The Alabama Republican party is torn apart, with only the usually absent three GOP congressmen capable of exercising any sort of leadership. The well-meaning, Romney-esque Mayor George Seibels of Birmingham is energetic but seems to have little clout.

In Mississippi, the GOP is a thing of a few able top people with virtually no substructure at all. The hope is for party-switching by disillusioned Democrats, as were aroused when Francis Gary Powers, pilot of the U-2 spy plane, was shot down over the interior of Russia just before the Paris Summit Conference was scheduled to start.

In the years that have passed, however, things have changed.

Both the United States and Russia have adopted a general policy that it is wiser if each side knows what the other is doing. As a result, Soviet electronic espionage ships have come within a few miles of Long Island, off New York City, and on at least one occasion have strayed inside the 3-mile limit.

American authorities gave that ship the benefit of the doubt, and no seizure was made.

There have also been cases of American vessels making observation voyages fairly close to the Siberian coastline.

This live-and-let-live policy between the United States and Russia has even extended to reconnaissance flights by fighter planes off the Alaskan coast. There was a time when if Soviet planes appeared on the radar scopes of our Alaskan bases, American fighters immediately "scrambled" to get in the air and meet them and, if any danger developed, head them off.

In recent months this scrambling practice has more or less been abandoned. When Soviet fighters make practice trips over the Bering Sea, American planes frequently do not get into the air to investigate. They know that war, if it ever comes, is not going to be precipitated by Soviet fighter planes. It will come from giant intercontinental ballistic missiles instead.

And since Nixon has been able to achieve an amazing response from the Russians ever since he assumed office, with no editorial criticism of him in the Soviet press, he was loath to risk sacrificing this by any tough tactics with Northern Korea, which enjoys a mutual defense pact with the Soviet.

Inside reason why 79-year-old Rep. Bill Colmer of Pascagoula, Miss., has been blocking the aid-to-education bill can now be revealed.

Colmer, as chairman of the House Rules Committee, has the power of "seniority" — which some people call "senility" — to sit on bills he doesn't like. Before Easter he went down to Mississippi and refused to call a meeting of his Rules Committee to give the okay to the federal aid-to-education bill, which efficient Chairman Carl Perkins of Kentucky had carefully whipped into shape as the first piece of House legislation.

The leaders of Congress, including speaker McCormack and Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma, got on the long distance telephone to beg Colmer to come back to his job in Washington. He refused. So the education bill was stymied.

Colmer didn't say anything about it when he was rebuffing Democratic leaders on the telephone, but the inside fact is that the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare has cut off funds for the school district in Colmer's home town, Pascagoula, for failure to observe federal desegregation rules. Pascagoula schools got around $175,000 last year. This year, however, all but $18,000 has been held back due to Pascagoula's failure to desegregate.

Rev. Colmer is furious. For approximately 15 years he has been getting federal money for the schools in his district while they thumbed their noses at the Supreme Court. This year, for the first time, they haven't got away with it.

Actually Pascagoula schools have been operating separate school systems for white and Negro students for years. All during the war and since, both Pascagoula and Gulfport, which are in Colmer's district, have been getting impacted federal funds for their schools because of the nearby Keesler Air Force base. Nevertheless, they have not desegregated.

There have been repeated negotiations between the federal and local officials to bring Pascagoula's schools into line. The great majority of Southern school districts, according to Leon Pannetta, director of HEW's Office of Civil Rights, have complied with the law. But the last HEW examiner's report dated April 12, 1968, and signed by Creagh Ewins, the hearing examiner, stated in part:

"The (Pascagoula) School District consists of 12 schools, 10 of which have been legally and traditionally white in respect to pupils and faculty. Two schools, the Carver High School and the Fair Elementary School, have been and continue to be Negro."

"The evidence further reveals that there is an inequality of educational opportunity between the Carver High School (Negro) and its white counterpart, the Pascagoula High School. This is manifested in programs of instruction, extant facilities and in qualification of teachers."

However, because Bill Colmer occupied a powerful position on the House Rules Committee, the federal government did not want to tangle with him. He has continued to get federal funds for his Mississippi district.

This year, however, when HEW belatedly held up the funds, Colmer retaliated by holding up the education bill authorizing funds for primary and high schools for the entire United States. Such is the power of committee chairmen in the House of Representatives.

Sullivan, a likely bet to succeed Williams in 1971, could prove more moderate despite a long personal history of conservative utterance.

National Democratic officials, staring at the gruesome fact that the once Solid South gave their 1968 presidential nominee just one of 11 states, are holding talks with men like Mississippi's Sen. John Stennis (up for reelection next year), looking for ways to put the warring factions together and win the states' electoral votes.

The stumbling block in Mississippi is that Evers and Henry are also NAACP officials, that rank and file loyalist support is heavily black and only thinly white, and that it is therefore hard to find the path by which newly empowered blacks and established conservative whites can move toward each other. Says a white liberal: "The biggest problem is separating civil rights and party politics...We just can't have all-black and all-white parties."

At this moment nothing is left, organizationally, of the Wallace phenomenon which brought him 63 per cent of Mississippi's vote in the 1968 presidential race. But 1972 might see a resurgence.

Across the line in Alabama, if Wallace seeks the 1970 governorship, as close aides are pressing him to do, he would be strongly favored over the widely commended and admired but super-cautious Gov. Albert Brewer, who gained the office when Wallace's wife, Gov. Lurleen, died in 1968.

Brewer will fight for the job if he must, in what could be a bruising battle. Comments a county politician: "It just curls your hair to think about it. But Wallace loves to run...Sitting behind a desk never was his strong suit."

Hobbit Hosts Winslow Folk Festival With Star Performance Slated Today

THE WILKES, FESTIVAL FIRST NIGHTERS

KINGSTON Midway through a two-day folk festival, The Hobbit is preparing for the gala performance tonight of Tom Winslow, noted blues singer.

Dubbed the Winslow Folk Festival in honor of the star performer, the event started last night with the appearance of Dr. Richard Wilke and his wife Lee, friends of Winslow.

The Wilkes presented songs written by the doctor who is well known in the folk field for his compositions. They accompanied selections with a wide variety of instruments including banjo, auto harp, zither, guitar and other tools of the folk music trade.

Tonight at 8

Tonight's show starring Winslow will begin 8 p.m. at the Hobbit Coffeehouse, in the Fair Street Reformed Church. Doors top the previous appearance here.

His program will include a wide variety of blues and spiritual selections in his own expressive way accompanied by his unusual guitar stylings.

A protegee of Pete Seeger, Winslow has appeared on radio and television and has appeared in concert with many great names of the folk music world.

This is not his first Kingston appearance and hopefully will not be his last. Winslow was introduced by Pete Seeger at the Afro-American Folk Concert co-sponsored by the Ulster Coffeehouse and the Hudson River Sloop Restoration project last winter.

Brought Down House

Those who attended that concert will recall the enthusiastic response to the four selections by Winslow and it is expected that tonight's one-man show will

Return to Campus Brings Honors to Area Youths

KINGSTON Return to campus after spring holidays walked at least one Kingstonian right into Honors Day recognition.

Mary K. Poag of 38 Griffin Drive, RD 5, Kingston, was recognized for scholastic achievement and leadership at the annual founders birthday observance at the University of Vermont in Burlington. Miss Poag was chosen for membership in Staff and Sandal, junior women's society. Membership is based on scholarship, leadership and character.

Also receiving recent honors on campus are Richard Neslund and Robert McLellan, both students at Rochester Institute of Technology, Rochester, N.Y. They were elected to the executive board of Sigma Pi Fraternity for the coming year. McLellan, son of Mrs. Lillian McLellan of 3 Griffin Drive, Kingston was elected to the office of first counselor. Neslund was elected a vice president. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Neslund of 770 Lincoln Park Place, Kingston.

At State University College, Potsdam, Marc Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Johnson, 11 West Chester Street, Kingston, performed a clarinet solo at a recent recital.

Johnson, a senior music education major, played "Three Pieces for Solo Clarinet" by Stravinsky.

Area Spring Dance Decorations Show Variety of Teenage Tastes, Interests

Area teenagers are apparently ready to dance their way through spring.

Ulster Academy, the new independent school which opened its doors for the first time last fall, is planning its very first student dance. The event will be held at the school at 105 Mary's Avenue, from 7:30 to 11:30 p.m. Friday, April 25.

The Unlimited Emotions, popular local group which appeared last week at The Hobbit Coffeehouse, will play for dancing. There will be a light show to heighten the psychedelic theme carried out in decorations. Refreshments will be another feature of the evening.

Tickets are limited but may be obtained from any student or at Yallum's. There will be some tickets at the door.

Big dance plans are underway at New Paltz too where the Class of 1970 is all twitter about the Junior Prom.

This year's theme will be Once Upon a Dream with decorations to match. The Middle School gymnasium will become a castle for the night of May 17 complete with moat and rustic entrance guarded by two knights. A floral arch and tiered fountain will center the throne room for the King and Queen and their eight attendants.

Tickets are on sale now from Gail Ossman, Barbara Weber, Paul Donahue, Pat Wilson, Kathy Freer and Alice Steffens.

Dancing will be from 8 p.m. to midnight.

This is a big weekend at Rondout Valley Central School what with the annual spring carnival going on today and the senior dance last night.

Carnival events are slated to start 5:30 p.m. today and continue through 10:30 p.m. in the high school.

Game booths, food concessions and intramural sports will be featured. Sports events for both boys and girls will be held in the gym beginning 7 p.m. The carnival is sponsored annually by the RVHS Student Council.

The seniors dance last night was the last social function before graduation week activities for the Class of 1969. Proceeds of the dance will be used to help defray the expenses of the annual senior trip.

Over at Red Hook Central School, music will be the order of next Saturday as the repeat performance of Plenty of Money hits the boards at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium. The presentation is in response to many requests from school and community for a repeat of the musical show. Tickets will be available at the door only. There will be no advance sales.

There is music in the offing for Kingston High School students too. Lincoln Center of Performing Arts will present Dolores Hertz, pianist in a special concert at KHS on May 1. Performance will be at 1:45 p.m.

TEEN SCENE: Generation Gap Seen as People Gap

By LEI

These days it seems that the only thing the generations agree on is that there is a Generation Gap. There is even a telly show capitalizing on it. There are college students demonstrating it, magazines editorializing about it, parents bewildered by it, and teenagers (no, not you, just everyone else) reveling in it. Parents and teenagers simply seem to be in two different worlds, on opposite sides of the Generation Gap. Seems that way, doesn't it?

But after some fairly close study (and we'd better watch our language) it might also seem that there is more to the Generation Gap than the words imply. First, there has always been one. When your parents were your age, they didn't agree with their parents about a lot of things, either. They were somewhat quieter about it, because everything was somewhat quieter then. Except parents, and they tended to be not unopposed to corporal punishment.

And your grandparents didn't understand their parents quite often, and as for your great-grandparents...! Socrates wrote about the disrespectful, long-haired, fun-centered youth of ancient Greece. It goes all the way back to Adam and Eve, who also resented rules and regulations.

Oddly enough, though, the Generation Gap doesn't close suddenly at a certain age. A lot of teens won't trust anyone over 30. But some of the younger teenagers have changed the adage to "Anyone over 20." And if you don't know that there are some very cool, very hep 9-year-olds who think that 15 is over the hill, then you are suffering from your own Generation Gap. On the other hand, your over-30 parents are still having some difficulty understanding their over-50 in-laws, and a great many elderly people feel that nothing in this country, your grandparents included, are as good as they ought to be.

Strangely, too, the lack of communication, the variance in interests, the intolerance toward the views of the other fellow, the mutual suspicion and distaste don't seem to follow generation lines so closely. Listen to your father talk about the boss, or your mother's opinion of that member of the club. In fact, getting down to it, there are members of your generation that you don't get along with, aren't there. Boy, some of those kids at school are really weird, aren't they? In fact, your uncle is easier to understand than some of them...

Because there are those not-so-rare exceptions over-30 who still know where it's at. Understanding the other fellow isn't a matter of age. "Generation" has nothing to do with it. It isn't a Generation Gap, It's a People Gap. Your parents don't understand your music, the Red Chinese don't understand the Russians, you don't understand that dopey girl your brother dates, the Democrats don't understand the Republicans, the Arabs don't understand the Jews, and the censors don't understand the Smothers Brothers.

The People Gap is the manifestation of the groovy fact that we are all very individual. Fortunately, we all have very differing opinions. The People Gap isn't a necessary price we pay for having opinions—it's the price we pay for not always wanting to be tolerant of everyone else's opinions. (After all, with some of those stupid opinions that are going around... No, not yours. The other fellows.) One day, perhaps, we'll all have evolved to the stage where we can see the other guy's point of view, and he'll be able to see ours. That will be the day the world will find peace.

If it lasts that long....

Discipline Is Key To Athletics - Lyon

By JIM MASSA

KINGSTON Discipline is the most important factor in the development of youth today and in the future. Army's defensive football coach, Richard (Dick) Lyon, told the audience at the 10th annual Kingston High School Athletic Awards banquet.

"Not only is discipline important in the home, it is absolutely essential in the athlete," the West Point coach commented.

Approximately 300 students and friends attended the dinner at which nearly 125 athletes and cheerleaders were honored.

"Parents should spend more time with their children," Lyon added. "A family is like a team and a team is like a country."

Softball League Slates Meeting

KINGSTON The first meeting of the Slow Pitch Softball League will be held Sunday afternoon, April 20 at 4 p.m. in the Kingston Municipal Auditorium. All managers interested in participating in the league this year are requested to have representation at this meeting.

The league opened last year with eight teams and it appears that it will expand well beyond what it started out as. It also appears that this will be the only softball played in the city.

Soap Box Derby Clinic Monday

KINGSTON The Kingston Jaycees will conduct the first of three clinics for boys competing in the 1969 Soap Box Derby, Monday at 7 p.m. at the Holiday Inn in Kingston.

The main feature of the clinic will be the showing of slides of the soap box derby and the various ways of building one, chairman Victor Locke said.

At the conclusion of the slides, it is hoped that those registrants having problems with their particular car will bring it forth, thereby enabling all present to learn from another's problems encountered during construction. Although the clinic is for those boys between 11 and 15 years of age who have registered, and their parents, it is also an opportunity for those youngsters who have not registered and would like to compete to come to the Holiday Inn and take part.

SURVEYING RUINS—Police Chief Mario Floriani and Fire Chief Al Conover survey the ruins of Apt. 702 in the Brighton Towers in Atlantic City, N. J., following a fire which claimed the lives of at least four and injured 24 in the 12-story luxury building. The fire started in 702 in a deep fat fryer and spread through three floors. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

4 Dead, 24 Injured in Blaze Of Fireproof Apartments

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI)—A fire in a "fireproof" building killed four persons and injured 24 others Friday night in Atlantic City. The dead were all women, and the injured were believed to have been in a fire that started as a grease fire in a fire official's pried open an elevator stuck between the sixth and seventh floors of the 12-story Brighton Towers apartment.

Atlantic City Hospital officials identified three of the victims as Judy Stout, 25, a nurse at the hospital, Mrs. Marie Fagiatore, 42, and Mrs. Marie Andisman. There was no immediate identification of the other victim, a young girl who police said suffocated.

John E. Wilson, a fireman who lives in the building, said the heat was "excruciating." He said the smoke was "so thick you could push it with your hand."

Twenty of the injured were released after treatment. Only one of those hospitalized was listed in serious condition. He was James O'Hagan, a building superintendent, who suffered second-degree burns of the face and hands.

Officials said O'Hagan, trapped in the elevator with two persons who died, was blown free by an explosion and managed to make his way out of the building.

The seventh and eighth floors of the aluminum-and-glass structure were gutted, and damage was estimated in the millions.

The fire was believed to have started as a grease fire in a frying pan in the seventh-floor apartment of some newlyweds. It quickly got out of hand and spread.

Fire Chief Earl Jordan said the fire was well under way when the first firemen arrived after responding to the alarm at 7:09 p.m. They brought it under control some two hours later.

Some 20 firemen from 11 companies fought the blaze in the drizzling rain.

City Cancer Drive Slated For Monday

KINGSTON The one-day Cancer Crusade in the 13 wards of Kingston gets underway Monday, 6 p. m. and continues until 8 p. m. when the volunteers will report with the day's receipts at Rondout National Bank, Henry Street.

Twenty captians and more than 150 crusaders are participating in the campaign which in some wards started early this week.

City Co-Chairman Melvin Mones and Felix J. Ambrose said the big emphasis of the city drive will be to complete all house calls by Monday evening. City Crusaders will use the remainder of the month to make call backs at residences where no one was at home at the time of the original call.

The co-chairman said that those residents who have not been contacted for a contribution to the Cancer Crusade may drop in at Rondout National Bank during the collection hours between 6 and 8 p. m. Monday.

The city goal is $9,500 and it is hoped by the chairmen that most of this can be achieved by Monday night.

County Chairman Dennis Pitcock, Mones, Ambrose and other officials will be at the bank to receive the returns.

Tivoli Budget Increase Seen

Street repairs in the Village of Tivoli will account for most of the tax increase for the 1969-70 fiscal year.

Mayor Mortimer Appel cited a possible $1.15 per thousand increase. The matter will have a public hearing Monday at 8 p. m. at the village offices. Current tax rate is $58 per thousand.

Dem Penny Social

Members of the Ulster County Women's Democratic Club will sponsor a penny social tonight, 7:30 o'clock, at the K of C Hall.

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON Increasingly noticeable improvements to one of the historic four corners of Kingston's stockade area appear each day as restoration work on the old "county building" continues.

Ordered by the County Legislature last August, the $44,607 rejuvenation of the 74 Crown Street stone building which houses the Extension Service is proceeding with a new roof, new windows, shutters, new front and side entrances, and inside improvements including new floors, stairs and a ceiling.

First built in 1775, the structure was burned by British troops in 1777 and was immediately rebuilt.

The present restoration is under the direction of Kingston architect Arthur Millikin and William Forrest Inc. of Poughkeepsie is the contractor.

For more than 200 years of its existence it has served as home for a doctor's office, grocery, public house, boarding house and individual residence.

In more recent years it has mainly been a gathering place for Ulster rural folk with the Extension Service using it as an office and meeting place for unit lessons and demonstrations.

Prior to the construction of the new county office building, it was thought that the Extension Service would occupy space there but the move was fought successfully and the old stone house remains headquarters for the service and if agreeable to the legislature will be used as well as a historic museum.

Fred Johnson, chairman of the historic landmarks commission recently asked the legislature to allow the two rooms used by the Home Economics Department on the first floor and the entrance hall on Crown Street to be opened to the visiting public.

Johnson also asked that the court house on Wall Street be floodlighted from dusk to midnight each day and that the county parking lot to the rear of the building be surrounded with an 18th century wall of either stone or brick. He also suggested the addition of trees to the lot.

Man Loses Arm In Conveyor Belt

KINGSTON George Gallo, 31, of East Kingston is listed in fair condition in Albany Medical Center following the loss of his right arm in an accident at the Hudson Cement Corp. plant here Friday.

Officials at the plant said Gallo was working alone on a conveyor at the plant when the accident occurred at about 11:30 a.m.

He was rushed by Fatum Ambulance to Kingston Hospital where doctors contacted the Albany Center for telephone assistance. Spokesmen for the Kingston hospital said no attempt was made to replace the arm, due to the extensive damage.

They said Gallo was awake while undergoing emergency treatment here. He was rushed by Fatum to Albany about 2 p.m.

Gallo resides with his wife and three children in the East Kingston community.

Dear Abby

Heed Convict's Advice

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

(© 1969 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I am 18 and in a pack of trouble. I was arrested for burglary and other charges. This was not my first time, so I am locked up here in Cambridge, Minn., awaiting trial. I would like to express some of the things I have learned in the 121 days I have been here.

One is that you should listen to your parents as they will never steer you wrong. I never got along too good with my dad. Every time he tried to talk to me we got into a heated argument, but now I realize if I had listened to him, I wouldn't be here.

I would also like to tell kids, don't quit school to go out and make money. I did, and look where I ended up.

Also, there are no short cuts. A guy needs all the education he can get. And another thing, don't blame your mistakes on other people. My friends showed me how to break the law, but I am the one who now must take full responsibility for my own actions. I will probably get sent up to St. Cloud, but thanks, Abby, for letting me say this. Also, I want to thank Sheriff Erickson. He is a swell guy. He let me use his typewriter to write to you.

Sincerely,

"THE CAMBRIDGE BUM"

DEAR SIR: You're young yet, so don't go calling yourself a "bum." You can pay your debt and still amount to something if you really want to. I talked to Sheriff Erickson, and he told me you had already been sent to St. Cloud. He said he certainly hoped you would straighten yourself out because you had a lot of good in you, in addition to being exceptionally smart. I believe him. I wish you luck.

DEAR ABBY: You always tell girls they should confide in their mothers. Well, I used to, but no more.

First I made my mother promise if I told her something in confidence she wouldn't tell anybody. She promised and I told her. (It was something about a boy I liked.) Well, it got back to this boy because my mother told my aunt, and this aunt just happens to have the biggest mouth in Baltimore.

that's all, and she told this boy's mother!

So, please, Abby, tell mothers who can't keep secrets not to feel left out if their children don't tell them anything.

TERRY
DEAR TERRY: You are right, of course. So to all you mothers out there: If you want to keep the lines of communication open between you and your children, never—but NEVER betray a confidence.

DEAR ABBY: Your column has always been welcome in our home. Indeed we called you "the learned judge—a Second Solomon." Then all that endearment came to a sudden end when you gave your approval to a mother bathing her baby in the kitchen sink—the same sink in which the household dishes were washed!

Abby, you showed a shocking disregard for the accepted principles of sanitation and disease prevention. The mere thought of eating from dishes washed in the same sink in which a child was bathed leaves a most offensive taste in one's mouth.

We could easily close this chapter by forever boycotting your column. However, we prefer to give you a chance to retract your unsavory judgment.

HELEN A., NORTHPORT, N.Y.
DEAR HELEN: Like I said, if the sink is clean BEFORE AND AFTER the baby's bath, what's the difference?

DEAR ABBY: I recently attended a formal wedding. Immediately following the ceremony, the photographer (a professional, hired for the occasion) said, "All right, I want a picture of the wedding party."

The pianist and soloist started to join the group. The photographer said, "Sorry, but you two are not in the wedding party."

The pianist appeared somewhat miffed, but sat down. The soloist ignored the photographer and got into the picture anyway. My question: Are the musicians part of the wedding party?

NOSY
DEAR NOSY: Not in MY book (Or Amy's, either.)

CONFIDENTIAL TO "ACTOR AT LIBERTY": Pride goeth before a fall. A small role is better than a long loaf.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.
(Hear Dear Abby Mon. thru Sat. at 10:30 a.m. WKNY-1490.)

Horoscope By SIDNEY OMARR

It's In The Stars

("The wise man controls his destiny . . . astrology points the way.")

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, APRIL 20, 1969

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Don't be in too much of a hurry—applies to what you say as well as actions. Tendency is to speak, write in haste and anger. Control impulse. Then day can be constructive.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Review budgetary matters. Mate or partner exhibits impatience in this area. Strive to promote enlightenment. Realize that diplomatic approach accomplishes more than does argument.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): One you are close to is apt to be argumentative. Don't compound error. Make concession. If perceptive, you gain in long run. Travel indicated. Avoid excess speed.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): What was a secret could be revealed. Steer clear of dispute within club, organization—might be best to stay away from crowds. Some of your statements are subject to misinterpretation.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Exciting day, featuring change, travel and new friends. Your appeal is wide; personal magnetism is strong. Be outgoing. You are going to be lionized.

'Human Bomb' Assault Takes Lives of 11 GIs

SAIGON (UPI)—Communist troops with explosives strapped to their bodies charged out of the darkness and attacked a desolate U.S. base camp near the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ). U.S. spokesmen reported today. They said the assault left 11 Americans dead and 23 wounded. The attackers numbered about 100 and included North Vietnamese infantry and commandos who had virtually turned themselves into human bombs with their parcels of explosives.

In Saigon, a U.S. soldier who escaped from 14 months of Communist captivity told of his joy on being picked up by an American helicopter crew. His first words to the pilot were, "I love you! I love you!"

The GI, Spec. 5 Thomas H. Van Putten, 21, of Caledonia, Mich., was suffering from dehydration and malnutrition when he was picked up near the Cambodian border Thursday. Military authorities said he had broken away from his captors 18 days before he was spotted.

"I've escaped from the enemy. Give me something to eat," Van Putten told his rescuers as he jumped aboard the helicopter. Reduced to 121 pounds from 185 when he was captured, Van Putten gobbled down chicken with noodles, fruit cocktail and warm root beer the crew prepared. He called it the finest food "in all my life."

Van Putten probably would fly back to the United States Sunday for a reunion with his parents, military spokesmen said. They refused to let him discuss his ordeal until he had been debriefed.

In the air, U.S. B52s dropped 700,000 pounds of bombs on Communist troop concentrations, base camps, bunkers, weapon sites, and storage areas in Tay Ninh and Long Khanh.

On the ground, troops of the U.S. 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment, using tanks and armored personnel carriers, killed 82 North Vietnamese in an assault on a bunker complex Friday, U.S. officials reported today. The battle cost the Americans seven dead, 28 wounded and four tanks.

A search of the area at dawn turned up 13 North Vietnamese bodies.

Northwest of Saigon Friday U.S. troops escorted by tanks attacked a Communist base camp hidden in jungle and left 82 North Vietnamese dead after a six-hour battle, the U.S. military reported.

American casualties in the fighting, 50 miles northwest of Saigon near Phu Khuong, cost seven American lives and 28 wounded.

The Americans encountered initial small arms, automatic weapon and rocket grenade fire, but helicopter gunships and artillery retaliated, the spokesmen said.

Communists shelled Allied bases and towns in South Vietnam again during the night. But spokesmen said the estimated 10 barrages was the lowest number of such attacks in as many days.

The military targets shelled included a U.S. 25th Infantry Division camp at Dau Tieng, 40 miles northwest of Saigon and a U.S. 1st Cavalry Division position 55 miles northwest of the capital. American casualties were described as light.

CLEARING SITE — Demolition crews start clearing Cedar Street site which will be used for the new Salvation Army building. Immediate plans call for clearing and leveling of the property which is at 41-43 Cedar Street, off Broadway. It is anticipated actual construction will not be started until 1971. U.S. Naval Forces to Korea, Will Protect Recon Flights

WASHINGTON (AP) — Potential U.S. naval forces, including the battleship New Jersey and possibly a pair of aircraft carriers, were reported steaming to new positions today to provide protection for American intelligence missions off North Korea.

The Pentagon announced redeployment of extensive forces Friday shortly after President Nixon ordered resumption of reconnaissance flights with the promise they will cease to be "air game" for North Korean jets.

Flights off the North Korean coast were halted Tuesday after an EC121 reconnaissance plane with 31 men aboard apparently was shot down. Only two bodies have been found in the Sea of Japan where the craft fell.

Redeployment of the naval forces was viewed as a protective step rather than a threat of retaliation against North Korea.

The New Jersey, which had been scheduled to arrive in Long Beach, Calif., today after duty off Vietnam, was ordered to turn around and return to the Western Pacific.

While no announcement was made of the strategy to be used in providing protection for the reconnaissance planes, indications were fighters would be stationed where they could come to the swift rescue of any threatened U.S. aircraft. Fighters would be kept in the air during intelligence missions, but not flying wing-to-wing with the reconnaissance aircraft.

Except for the New Jersey, the Pentagon did not say what ships were involved and the announcement stopped short of specifying the new positions actually were in the Sea of Japan. A Defense Department spokesman said only the redeployment involved "a number of different types of vessels."

One carrier believed on the way to the Sea of Japan is the USS Kittyhawk which carries 90 warplanes. The Kittyhawk left Long Kong with two destroyers earlier this week without any announcement of its destination.

In ordering resumption of the intelligence flights, Nixon pronounced them vital to the security of U.S. troops stationed in South Korea.

Nixon revealed for the first time that the United States is capable of "reading" radar pictures of another country from miles away.

He said both showed that the EC121 was 90 miles offshore—well outside North Korean territory—when shot down.

Military experts said the crew of the EC121 would not have been alarmed immediately by the presence of MIGs, since the North Korean fighters routinely fly over them over international water. The sources said the extensive electronic gear on the plane also would have been concentrating on monitoring North Korean radio tracking rather than watching for approaching aircraft.

Egypt, Israel Duel Continues

Egypt and Israel fought a firing was halted by a United Nations arranged cease-fire. The big gun duels spread from the entrance to Great Bitter Lakes to six miles south of Port Said, the communicate said.

"Our forces used concentrated artillery and tank fire and destroyed enemy tanks, artillery and fortified positions," the Cairo communicate said.

The communicate mentioned no casualties on either side.

In Cairo, Jordanian Premier Abdel Moneim el Rifai denied that King Hussein had offered a new plan for the Middle East.

"Pro-Israeli news agencies are attempting to exploit Hussein's speeches from Washington," Rifai told the Egyptian newspaper Akhbar Elyoun.

He said the six-point program Hussein announced in Washington was "nothing but points already contained in the (U.N.)

Security Council's resolution of Nov. 22, 1967.

"The king never submitted any plan to anybody," he said. There had been reports that President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt had endorsed the plan. "Israel's intention is clear, because it opposes the Security Council's resolution. It is also trying to destroy Arab harmony."

Rifai said he believed the United States was ready "more than ever before to understand the Arab viewpoint" in the Middle East struggle.

Captains of 15 foreign ships trapped in the Suez Canal since the June, 1967, war complained their fighting near the canal was endangering their ships. They said artillery shells were falling near the vessels.

U.S. Walkout in Panmunjom Termed Criminal by North

TOKYO (UPI) — A North Korean general charged today that a walkout of U.S. officials from the meeting in Panmunjom over the downed American reconnaissance plane was "a criminal act."

U.S. Air Force Maj. Gen. James B. Knapp and his aides walked out of the Military Armistice Commission Friday when the North Koreans questioned him about the plane.

"At the Military Armistice Commission, the senior member of the enemy side had the impertinence to flee, unilaterally, breaking up the meeting," Maj. Gen. Ri Choon-Sun said in a broadcast from North Korea.

"This was one more flagrant violation of the armistice agreement and a criminal act wrecking the normal functional of the Military Armistice Commission," Ri said.

Knapp walked out when Ri asked him to what military unit the Navy's EC121 belonged.

"The senior member of the enemy side let loose a whole string of robber-like sophistry in an attempt to justify the criminal act in sending a spy plane into the territorial air of our country on April 15," Ri said.

"When we brought the U.S. imperialists to task at the meeting for the aggressive act of infiltrating a spy plane into the territorial air of the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea, the senior member of the enemy side fled from the meeting hall," he said.

"An air force unit of the Korean peoples army firmly defending the inviolable territorial air of the fatherland, in a self-defense action, shot down the large-size reconnaissance plane EC121 of the U.S. imperialists which had illegally intruded into the territorial air of our country," he said.

"It was a link in the chain of the planned moves of the U.S. imperialists for the provocation of new war in Korea."

'Psychodrama'--The Mind's Stage

By ELAINE ZIMBEL

With the opening of Moreno Institute's Theatre of Psychodrama at Beacon to the general public, a unique experience has become available to residents of the Hudson Valley. The theatre has been in Beacon for over 30 years but until recently it served as part of a therapeutic treatment center and a training center on the graduate level. Now, though it continues to train many graduate students annually in the fields of group psychotherapy, sociometry, and psychodrama, its creator Dr. J. L. Moreno, Vienna-trained psychiatrist, and his wife Zerka, have opened its doors to all on Saturday evenings. In order to understand why they have done so, it is necessary to understand why psychodrama is, what it does, how it works.

But in psychodrama one doesn't talk about things, one acts them out. "Don't tell me—show me" is perhaps the most fitting motto for the theatre of psychodrama.

Up a long driveway from Wolcott Avenue in Beacon is a large old building. There is no marquee, no announcement of tonight's production, no bright lights indicating who is the star of the show.

Inside the overhead lights illuminate a large, high-ceilinged, rectangular room. It is plain, very plain. There are no drapes, no plush seats, not even a curtain to hide the stage at the opposite end of the room, round and three-tiered. Behind and above it is a balcony as wide as the room. It is supported by two pillars and has a white railing. In front of the stage are metal folding chairs more or less in rows. On the stage itself are three chairs, two of the same drab metal facing each other; the third collapsed in a heap, all in pieces. A muslin covered mattress leans against the furthest wall.

What happens in that room for those of us who attend a Saturday night session? After registering and paying an entrance fee, we take a seat among students in residence and others from outside. Shortly, Mrs. Moreno mounts to the stage and says, "Well, shall we begin?"

From this point on our experience becomes strictly our own in the sense that it belongs to only those of us who are here. Although we do not yet know it, the drama of this night will never be repeated—no one else will ever see it. It has never been written. One of us has brought it with him.

THE ROUND STAGE of three tiers at Beacon's Theatre of Psychodrama seems drab and plain at first glance, but by the end of any given session, it has come alive with drama. (Photo by George Zimbel)

The beginning of each psychodramatic session is called the warm-up. It is a time to relax and to trust. We are no longer just ourselves—a single person, a married couple, or a group of friends who have come to the theatre together—now we are a group of people sharing an experience. We share, at first, by telling something about ourselves—perhaps nothing more than our first name or what we do or what we hope to do some day. Finally the moment comes when the "protagonist" is chosen, someone is asked to be, in effect, the star of the show.

Now the director is no longer alone on the stage. The protagonist beside her is at first self-conscious, but when the houselights are turned off and only the stage lighting remains, the world outside recedes and the world of his mind becomes brighter. The people in the theatre are only dimly seen while the people in his life become tangible and real.

Our protagonist, under the guidance of the director, may begin to re-enact a scene in his life that has in fact taken place—or he may act out a situation that is in his mind and has never taken place. In either case he will be asked first to set the scene. He will actually create the room in which the action is to occur simply by placing a few chairs here and there and with a motion of his hand indicating where the door is, the windows, telling us the size of the room, its colors, its significant objects. Only then may he place himself in that room, and only then may he introduce another person or persons into it. Who will it or they be? Only the protagonist knew at first, but now the director also knows for she has discovered an area of conflict in his life—she has found a place to begin this evening's drama.

The protagonist introduces us to this person or persons in his life by reversing roles—he becomes, for a moment, the other person. In his new role he describes the person he has become. If he has become his mother, for example, the director might say to him, "Now, Mrs., could you tell us a little about yourself? Is your husband still alive? Do you have any other children besides X? Tell me, frankly, Mrs., does this boy give you a lot of trouble?" The answers, of course, are far more interesting than the questions, particularly since "this boy" is himself standing in for his mother.

Now that we have a clear picture of the mother our protagonist might select from the audience someone to play her part. The person he selects may be someone who has been trained to be an "auxiliary ego," a therapeutic actor, or it may be someone with no previous experience at all, someone who simply reminds him of his mother. Whoever it is, the director will not leave her to flounder inside an unknown role. The protagonist has already shown us his mother—if necessary he will correct and guide the auxiliary ego in her part as the drama unfolds.

The protagonist reverses back to his own role and the action begins. It is happening here and now. The protagonist is never allowed to say, "Well, I said to her..." The director will tell him, "Don't tell us about it—just say it to her now." And he does.

The scenes change, roles switch back and forth, now it is yesterday, now it is 15 years ago, now it is five years from now. From time to time we are reminded that even when the scene is a re-enactment of an event that actually occurred, it is not an exact copy of a past experience since none of us can remember with the faithfulness of a tape recorder or movie camera. Instead it is a projection of one person's reality. It is the way he remembers it—it is the way he experienced it. It is his own reality.

But sometimes what we see is another kind of reality. We may see instead reality made better—the way the protagonist would have liked it to happen—or reality made worse, the reality the protagonist fears, the reality he is afraid he cannot cope with. In psychodrama he is given the chance to play it over and to be successful this time. And because he is not merely talking about it, because he is acting it out with real people, the success really becomes his own. When the houselights go up, the audience is asked to share its feelings with the protagonist. No advice or criticism is offered, but efforts are made to give warmly from each person's own experience.

Is psychodrama therapy or entertainment? It is frequently used as a therapeutic tool, but sessions are never billed as therapy even though a person may get therapy from the experience. Mostly, psychodrama is a happening—in that something happens to every person present.

Sound interesting? If so, you'll want to know that the Beacon theatre is open to the public each Saturday evening at 8:15. It's at 259 Wolcott Avenue (Route 9D) and advance reservations are not necessary for individuals, for whom the fee is $4. A series of four tickets, which do not have to be used on consecutive weeks, can be purchased at lowered rates. Groups of 25 or more who purchase reserved seats in advance are given reductions. The phone number is 914-831-2318.

Venetian Glass Collection to Be Shown

The first showing of a contemporary collection of Venetian glass will be opened to the public on Sunday from 10 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. at the Wheaton Glass Museum, 1118 North High Street, Millville, New Jersey.

This collection of 46 separate items has been created by some of the most skilled glass workers in the world today. They represent the highest achievement of craftsmanship in Murano, Italy, noted as the center of fine Venetian glassware since the eleventh century.

It was in 1291 that the city fathers of Venice moved the glass furnaces to Murano, a small island about a mile off the main island. So important was the glass industry to Venice that Murano workers for centuries were forbidden to leave Venice or disclose their glass making secrets.

The Wheaton Glass Museum is maintained by the Wheaton Historical Association, a non-profit corporation. It is dedicated to the preservation of examples of early South Jersey glass, and the histories of early factories and workers. The Museum is open to the public daily, Monday through Saturday, from 1:00 to 4:30 p.m. There is no admission charge.

On permanent display in the Museum is the "Barber Millville Rose" and hundreds of other rare and beautiful paperweights. Collections of "Durand" glassware and "off hand" or "end of day" items are combined with an extensive collection of early South Jersey bottles. The glassmakers' tools are also included.

Antique cars, among them a 1922 Model "T" Ford, a 1923 Willys Knight and a 1915 Overland, will be on display, Sunday, April 20 only, in front of the Museum. These automobiles of another era will be shown by the South Jersey Antique Car Club.

Among other related items from the turn of the century vintage are a country store display, antique music boxes, a nickelodeon and a violano virtuoso, a combination violin and piano music box rated by the United States Patent Office as the greatest invention of the century.

Group tours are welcome by appointment. For further information write Curator, Wheaton Glass Museum.

Lectures on China

Two lectures on China were given this week at Bennett College, Millbrook, by Professor Donald G. Gillin of Vassar College. The talks, to which the public was invited, were part of Bennett's East-West Studies program. Dr. Gillin spoke on "Traditional Concepts of Politics in China" on Tuesday, April 15, and on "The Emergence of the Chinese Communists to Power" on Thursday, April 17. Both lectures took place in Matthison-Kennedy Auditorium, beginning at 1 p.m.

Dr. Gillin, who earned his B.A., M.A., and Ph.D. at Stanford University, was appointed professor of history at Vassar last fall and is connected with its interdepartmental program on East Asian studies. He is a specialist in Asian affairs and has studied in Taiwan, Hong Kong, and Japan under fellowships from the Ford Foundation and the Social Science Research Council. His many publications include the book "Warlord: The Life and Times of Marshal Yen Hsi-shan."

Before coming to Vassar, Dr. Gillin was a member of the Duke University history faculty for ten years and a visiting member of the faculties of the University of Michigan and North Carolina, Stanford University, and San Francisco State College. At Duke and the University of Michigan, he has directed summer sessions on Asian studies for high school and college teachers. He is an editor of the newsletter of the Association for Asian Studies and is general editor of the Asian Bibliography Project of the State University of New York.

Representational Art At New Paltz Gallery

Forms of realism feature an exhibit of painting and sculpture by artists of the New York area which will open at the Art Gallery, State University College, New Paltz, Sunday afternoon.

"20 Representational Artists" was organized in New Paltz by George Wexler art professor at the college. After the May 10 closing, the show will travel to the art galleries of the State Universities at Albany and Buffalo.

Although many of the artists represented have been deeply involved at one time with recent movements of abstract art, most have rejected these styles in favor of a form more traditional and more personally satisfying in terms of each artist's ideas of the nature and substance of art," according to New Paltz Gallery director William A. Bartsch. Bartsch said "representational art" would at one time have been called "neo-realism."

Among the artists Mr. Wexler has selected are Fairfield Porter, Phillip Pearlstein, Seymour Chwast, Richard Miller, Leland Bell, St. Julian Fishburne, Thyra Davidson, Jane Freilicher, and Lennart Anderson.

Gallery hours for the show will be 9 to 9 daily and 10 to 3 Saturday.

Want to Make the Scene? New York Has Sixteen for You!

21—THE KINGSTON DAILY FREEMAN, APR. 19, 1969

No doubt about it—New York City is the place for making the scene. And for visitors to Gotham this spring or to its annual "Summer Festival," which swings from June to September, Tempo would like to suggest "Sixteen Scenes for Spring and Summer '69":

THE ROCKEFELLER CENTER SCENE. An Easter Parade all summer long, the Center bursts with activity. Dine under umbrellas in the Promenade Cafe—or under the stars in the Rainbow Room. Take in the show at Radio City Music Hall. And all for FREE at the Center: enjoy the beautiful Channel Gardens and listen to the summertime band. Window shop the Center's great stores and catch the free exhibits, such as the Chase Manhattan Money Museum.

THE CENTRAL PARK SCENE. This year, Central Park is everyone's playground, and "doing their thing" there are hippies, nannies, advertising execs, Park Avenue matrons. Don't miss the Bethesda Fountain, where youth parades the latest fashions, or the Fountain Cafe, an oasis for the fresh-air gourmet. At night, catch the FREE Shakespeare Festival, pop and classical concerts, the New York Philharmonic, the Goldman-Guggenheim Band and many other "happenings." Over in Brooklyn in Prospect Park, many of these events are repeated.

Latest Spectacle

THE DELACORTE GEYSER SCENE. This spectacular new sightseeing attraction (opening in June) will launch the Summer Festival in dramatic style. Located in the East River just off the southwestern tip of Welfare Island, the geyser will throw a jet of water 400-600 feet high, and the watery plume will be brilliantly illuminated at night. Best spots from which to view the spectacle: the U.N. Plaza, end streets along the East Side, and from Circle Line sightseeing boats.

THE GREENWICH VILLAGE SCENE. New York's Bohemia seemingly goes on forever. You'll find the crowds along 8th street (a shopper's paradise), MacDougal and Bleecker (for dining and cabaret), St. Mark's Place and Washington Square (great for people watching). The West Village is quieter, but boasts many gracious town houses and fanciful shops along Christopher, Bleecker and Hudson Streets.

THE HARLEM SCENE. Penny Sightseeing Company, 303 West 42nd Street, owned and operated by blacks, specializes in tours of "the real Harlem." Its owners offer tourists a chance to prove that a Harlem tour is safe, educational and fun, as they escort visitors to churches, nightclubs, banks, Afro-botiques, museums, drug addiction centers and historic sights.

THE WATERFRONT SCENE. New York's port is one of the world's greatest, and you can see it all (plus each of the city's five boroughs) during a three-hour Circle Line cruise. The beach scene holds forth at Coney Island and Rockaway (both offering FREE firework displays) and Jones Beach (where you can see a musical extravaganza in the open-air theater). And, for only a nickel, you can ride the Staten Island ferry.

No More Stork

THE PALEY PARK SCENE. Replace a night club in the heart of Manhattan with a charming vest pocket park? Yes indeed! You'll find it where the Stork Club used to be just east of 5th Avenue on 53rd Street. You can relax in a cafe chair, sip a soda under the feathery honey locust trees, and watch the "waterwall."

THE SWINGING PUB SCENE. On the upper East Side, the old Irish bars are awash in Now Generation doings. And down on the lower West Side, you'll find the sidewalk cafe scene and "soul clubs"—like the West Boondock, brightening up the warehouse district along 10th Avenue at West 17th Street.

THE CHINATOWN SCENE. Take a walking tour or go for the entire evening—so you can enjoy the lights. Hop a subway or bus to the colorful Chinese section, wander around a bit and shop for souvenirs; then have a gourmet meal at bargain prices.

THE SIGHTSEEING SCENE. Many Ulsterites tell us they haven't been to New York in years and years, and some say they've never been at all. Whether it's your first trip, your first in ages, or you've been time and time again, you should see the Empire State Building, the Statue of Liberty, the Bronx, Brooklyn, Central Park and Staten Island Zoos, the Bronx and Brooklyn Botanical Gardens. The United Nations offers free admission to official meetings with tickets available right at the UN Information Desk. Totally unique at the UN: its post office, gift, souvenir, stamp and book shops. For the small price of a bus or subway ride down to Battery Park, at the tip of lower Manhattan, free for the looking are such famous sights as a fine view of the harbor and the Statue of Liberty. In upper Manhattan, you will find no admission charged for visiting such landmarks as Grant's Tomb and the Hall of Fame. And there are newer wonders, too, like the Ford Foundation (free tours daily), new General Motors skyscraper, and the free EXPO-AMF at Madison Square Garden Center—easy to get to via various sightseeing bus tours around town.

Broadway and Off

THE ENTERTAINMENT SCENE. There's always the bright lights of Times Square and "The Great White Way" of Broadway. At Times Square, there are free exhibits at the new Allied Chemical Building ("Moon City in the Year 2000" and the chemical magic show). You can walk from there to Lincoln Center for a look at the handsome buildings that play host to the greatest names in opera, music, dance and theatre—or take the guided tour through. If you've got money to spend, there's Broadway, off-Broadway, even off-off Broadway shows, first-run movies and TV shows (free tickets offered on a day-to-day, first-come, first-served basis at the New York Convention and Visitors Bureau), nightclubs, discotheques, and folk-rock-jazz bars.

THE FINANCIAL DISTRICT SCENE. Both the New York and American Stock Exchanges offer free tours, and Amex has a brand-new visitors gallery with a multi-screen film show. Amex's free booklet, "Lower Manhattan Landmarks," will guide you to such interesting sights as Federal Hall, Trinity Church and Fraunces Tavern.

THE SPORTS SCENE. The new Madison Square Garden and the newly rebuilt Belmont Park racetrack are the latest jewels in the sports crown. Or have a hot dog or two at a baseball game with the Yankees in the Bronx or the Mets in Queens. You could also rent a bicycle or go jogging through Central Park or any other park and you just might meet Manhattan's Mayor John Lindsay along the way, because that's what he does.

THE GREAT CHURCHES SCENE. Food for the soul and impressive works of art and architecture at such landmarks as St. Patrick's, St. John the Divine, Temple Emanu-El and the Abyssinian Baptist Church in Harlem.

THE PALEY PARK SCENE is nestled between surrounding buildings in Mid-Manhattan, making it a gem of a park smack in the middle of one of the busiest office areas in town. Trees and waterfall brings a gentle and harmonious respite from nearby activity and bustle.

THE ART SCENE features "Bust of Sylvette," Pablo Picasso's giant beauty in poured concrete and a recent fresh air attraction in Greenwich Village. Spectacular sculpture stands in New York University's Washington Square Center.

PETULA CLARK

Starring at Saratoga

Petula Clark, the young British singer who now stands at the top of the entertainment world, will star in her own show

Paintings Are Of World War I

History and art are combined in the exhibit by Harry Fisk currently on display at Mount Saint Mary College Library, Newburgh. The exhibit which depicts scenes of World War I is open to the public during regular library hours through April 30.

Fisk, a New York City resident, is an illustrator for magazines, books and lithographic companies and a portrait painter. His work has been printed in Colliers, Good Housekeeping, Harpers, Scribner publications, Westminster Press and Crowell Publishing Company. He has taught at the Cartoonists and Illustrators School, New York City, where he has been chairman of the Illustration Department since 1947. He served two terms as president of the Artists Guild and is currently the editor of their newspaper.

The college exhibit is a collection of scenes of naval and army battles during World War I. Also included in the exhibit are six in a series of 30 paintings Fisk has done of the "USS Constellation," sister ship of the "USS Constitution."

The College Library is open Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Saturday and Sunday, 1 to 4 p.m.

this summer at the Saratoga Performing Arts Center. Joining Tony Bennett, The Young Americans, The Fifth Dimension, and The King Family, Petula Clark becomes the fifth Special Event in the partially filled roster of one-night stands playing in Saratoga.

Petula Clark's career was launched in this country with her Gold Record hit, "Downtown." From this successful entry into the pop-recording field, Pet's career has zoomed upward. No one has ever had a more auspicious break into U.S. films than did Petula, who began her career in Hollywood in the multi-million dollar film version of the hit Broadway musical, "Finian's Rainbow," co-starring Fred Astaire.

Pet, the most successful and popular British-born entertainer since the Beatles, has appeared on every top-line television show. Her second major special was aired recently on NBC. Titled "Portrait of Petula," the lavish one hour special, saluted those countries she loves best: England, France and the United States. Co-starring were Andy Williams and Ron Moody.

Appearing in person at a limited number of summer engagements, Petula Clark has not announced her performance date for Saratoga, but will probably be scheduled on a "dark" night of the New York City Ballet's performance in July.

Museums Abound

THE ART SCENE. Visit the great museums such as the Metropolitan, but don't overlook the fabulous Brooklyn museum or the Frick Collection. (The Guggenheim, Whitney and Modern charge a small fee, but architecture looking is for free). A beguiling new museum/shop is the Astro Gallery of Minerals and Gems at 155 East 34th Street. As for outdoor art, you really should see "Sylvette" (Picasso's latest colossal outdoor sculpture) in Greenwich Village, Bernard Rosenthal's giant black cube in Astor Place, or Isama Noguchi's giant red cube at 140 Broadway. The Washington Square Greenwich Village outdoor art exhibit runs from mid-May to early June and from late August to mid-September.

THE SHOPPING SCENE. Here's the part of New York Tempo likes best and the part you can take home. Bargains abound on Orchard and Delancey Streets, browsing is fun in the antique shops and boutiques along the upper East Side and down in Greenwich Village, treasure-hunting is possible along Fifth Avenue, Herald Square, and 34th, 57th, and 59th Streets.

It's easy to make these scenes if you know how to find them. And that's easy, too. Just contact the New York Convention and Visitors Bureau, 90 East 42nd Street, New York City 10018. They'll send you free information, folders and maps—and off you can go to the Statue of Liberty, the Fulton Fish Market, Sheepshead Bay, or the Brooklyn Botanic Garden.

On Three-Day Run:

Streetcar Stops Here

It's a first directing effort for Al Steigerwald for Ninety Miles Off Broadway, and the play he has chosen is Tennessee Williams' 1947 Pulitzer Prize winning drama, "A Streetcar Named Desire." This modern tragedy with sometimes comic overtones will have a three-day run—Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 24, 25 and 26—at the newly constructed New Paltz High School Auditorium. Curtain time for each performance will be 8:30 p.m.

Steigerwald chose "Streetcar" as one more facet in his 10 year pursuit of knowledge about the elusive and symbolic Williams. It is his personal opinion that Williams is "America's finest playwright with the possible exception of Eugene O'Neill." For that reason, Steigerwald has been involved for some time in researching material for two possible books on Williams. He hopes to write a critical evaluation of the author's plays, short stories and poems, as well as a related work entitled "Tramping After Tennessee."

Previous to directing this undertaking for Ninety Miles Off Broadway, Steigerwald played the leading role in "The Time of Your Life" and was featured in "Who Was That Lady I Saw You With?" for the company.

Leads in NMOB's "Streetcar" have been cast as follows: Joan Wood as the neurotic Blanche DuBois, Rocco Pietrofesa as Stanley Kowalski of the torn T-shirt, Pam Geuss as Stan's wife Stella, and Al Snider as Mitch, Stan's drinking buddy.

Efforts are being made to increase attendance at "Streetcar" by college and high school students by offering tickets at reduced prices for the Thursday night performance. Seats for that evening will be on a first-come-first-served basis.

AL STEIGERWALD

Opening Postponed

The Second Floor, permanent art museum of Woodstock Historical Society, previously scheduled to open Sunday, has been changed to May 11, at which time E. C. Leaycraft, president of the Society, will act as host.

The purpose of the group in opening the second floor and dedicating it to the art of Woodstock is to retain a permanent record of the moods and changes that are in force in the mind of the artist. Members hope to acquire a collection on a permanent basis.

Since the early art colony was established at Woodstock, both on Byrdcliffe and the Maverick, and later the move of the Art Students League summer school, there have been various other schools opened; two summers ago Group 212 on Woodstock-Saugerties Road, and the later establishment of Woodstock School of Art.

It is the feeling of Woodstock Historical Society that "Unless we are actually involved in these various projects, most of us will accept them as a part, but the thoughts and ideas resulting are lost. And, if it happens that the group is broken up, then the questions arise, what was the aim, ideas, and thoughts, and where will it go from there."

THE CENTRAL PARK SCENE offers a main zoo and children's zoo, two rowing lakes, a carousel, a Shakespeare Festival Theatre and a model yacht pond, along with recreational facilities aplenty. At Bethesda Fountain, shown here, people watchers come into their own.

'St. John Passion' at Vassar

The Vassar College Choir and the Princeton University Glee Club will perform the entire "St. John Passion" by Bach with soloists and orchestra in the Vassar Chapel Sunday at 7:30 p.m. The performance will be conducted by Donald M. Pearson, professor of music. Walter Nollner is the director of the Princeton University Glee Club. The "St. John Passion" was first performed in Leipzig in 1723, and was last performed by the Vassar Choir in Poughkeepsie in 1950.

Soloists for the work are Phyllis Bryn-Julson, soprano; Jenny Hudson, contralto; David Dodds, tenor; Leslie Guinn, bass; and William Wiederanders, bass.

Susan Herdman '69, chairman of the choir committee, is in charge of arrangements for the weekend.

Area residents are invited to attend. There is no charge for admission.

'Working on Oneself'

IN POSTURE I, yoga instructor Stephen Larsen lies on floor, torso raised in push-up position. One of the basic yoga postures, called "the cobra," it calls for the spine to be slowly stretched, then relaxed.

POSTURE II FINDS Larsen on floor, feet over head and toes touching floor. Called "the plough," this posture is complementary to "the cobra," and stretches the back and legs the opposite way from the first exercise.

STANDING WITH ONE FOOT in air, Larsen assumes Posture III, or Arabesque. Mainly for flexibility and balance, this particular posture is also an excellent way to attract the attention of a driver while hailing a taxicab, jokes the young instructor.

The cultural exchange between the eastern and western hemispheres has opened a veritable Pandora's box for both sides. It is self-evident that eastern countries are utilizing our machinery and technology to improve their standard of living. As for a great many of us here in the west, we have come to realize that there's much of value to be gained from eastern culture.

Paramount to eastern philosophy and science is the ancient notion of "working on oneself." And would it surprise you to know that YOGA is the name given to this rather technical science? It is yoga that is used by eastern peoples to bring their bodies and minds to a state of relaxation and harmony. And it has been found remarkably effective by many in the U.S., who have come to look upon Yoga as a science no less exact than many western sciences.

Just this week, Stephen Larsen, a young psychology instructor at Ulster County Community College, began conducting yoga classes for the public in the Kingston School of Ballet studio at the Burgevin building, 243 Fair Street. What he's stressing there, says Larsen, is the fact that the "important interrelationship between body and mind is seldom recognized." We never think much about it, he says, until some dramatic occurrence brings it home to us in the form of psychosomatic illness or a case of most uncomfortable ulcers.

And Larsen, who knows whereof he speaks, says that—even then—doctors usually have to utilize all their persuasive powers to convince those of us who live under today's pressures that it is mental factors that cause the physical symptom of a bad back or stomach.

Working on oneself through yoga can prevent such situations, since yoga works on chronic tensions or anxieties from both ends—mental and physical.

Larsen's chosen career field may be psychology, but he is also an accomplished gymnast; holds a brown belt in the oriental art of karate. A student of yoga for a number of years with various teachers, he has conducted yoga classes for students and faculty on the Stone Ridge campus of UCCC.

This definitely entitles him to point out that yoga and modern psychology agree on the point that the physical body can act as a "storehouse" for all unwanted tensions, anxieties and fears. One often used psychoanalytic system, he says, calls for the massage of tense and rigid areas of the body as an aid to releasing bottled up emotions.

Class Times

Blonde, lithe, personable and relaxed, Stephen Larsen is his own best advertisement for his classes. And those, for you who are interested, include men's classes on Monday from 5:15 to 6:30 p.m., and women's classes on Monday from 7 to 8:30 p.m. and on Tuesday from 10:30-12 at the Fair Street address. The classes, which begin this week, will run for 10 weeks, and registration is still open.

If you attend, you'll find that yoga works by deliberate physical relaxation. Certain postures, called "Asanas," stretch and relax the skeletal muscles, and other postures work on the tone of the inner organs and viscera. In its favor, yoga is deliberately non-competitive, and those who sign up with Larsen will not have to worry about entering Olympic Games to see who can bend himself into the most pretzel-like shape. On the theory that competition of any sort generally creates tension, yoga instructors emphasize that the real achievement is between the student and the responsiveness of his own body. After the postures are mastered, breathing exercises are utilized to increase lung capacity and depth of respiration.

Hatha Yoga is Larsen's forte and its goal, he says, is to be physically flexible and supple—relaxed, yet strong. "The body becomes more sensitively capable of carrying out the wishes of the mind," he says, "and this also carries over to the mental plane." Larsen knows that concentration and attentiveness to the body produces a state of mind that is relaxed, yet alert. And he wants to prove to others that yoga can carry over to many other activities such as skiing and swimming.

A Dance Workshop

The Vassar College Dance Group will visit Bennett College, Millbrook, on Monday, April 21, for a master lesson in modern dance technique with Bruce King, visiting artist in dance at Bennett.

Following this there will be a Bennett-Vassar dance workshop, with Bennett dance majors under the direction of Emily Wadhams and Vassar students under the direction of Elizabeth Sherbon presenting an informal program in Bennett's Carmen Rooker Dance Studio, Mellon Center for the Arts.

About the Cover

Freeman photographer Bob Haines' cover picture for TEMPO this week reminds us that it'll shortly be the time of year when a visit to West Point on the Hudson could prove an interesting trip. High points on the 15,000-acre reservation of the U.S. Military Academy are the Cadet Chapel, the Plain (where parades are held), the Museum, the library, restored Fort Putnam, and the Battle Monument on Trophy Point. The post is open to visitors with a Visitors' Information Center open during the summer months at Thayer Gate. At the Center you can see displays of cadet training, free movies, and a typical cadet room.

To reach the Academy leave route 9W at route 218. All along the banks of the Hudson River, east and west, modern highways and railroads present the traveler with an unending panorama of scenic beauty. The Storm King Highway, carved through the rock high above the river is perhaps one of the most outstanding examples. For a real "spectacular" this should be a must on your way to visit West Point. Take the easy way back and return to the Thruway a Newburgh, Exit 17.

Kinspex VI Could Be The 'Show of Shows'

The biggest stamp show ever held in Kingston! That's the promise of The Stamptrotters Society of Kingston, now inviting all area stamp collectors to participate in the upcoming KINSPEX VI. A colorful stamp exhibition and bourse, it'll be held May 3 and 4 at Kingston's John Coleman High School on Hurley Avenue.

Exhibitors are invited to compete in all usual classes and or in the special Europa (United Europe) class. Entry forms are now available from Dr. Stewart Ritchie, 97 Fair Street, Kingston, N.Y. 12401.

Another feature of KINSPEX VI will be an award banquet on May 3 at Arnold's Restaurant, Route 28. Special guest speaker for the affair will be Col. Herman H. Halle, president of the German Philatelic Society. Tickets to the banquet, at $6, are available from Dr. Harry McNamara, of Hurley.

A Special Display
This year's special display may prove to be the best of its kind ever seen here. Provided by the European Community Information Service of Washington, D. C., it will consist of panels outlining the activities of the European Common Market; is considered a most unusual educational exhibit. It's also particularly appropriate at this time since 1969 anniversaries include a 20th for NATO, 10th for The European Postal and Telecommunications Conference (CEPT), a 25th for the Benelux Treaty, and a 10th for the Europa Study Unit, co-sponsors of the Europa exhibit class.

Show hours on May 3 will be from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., and on May 4 from 1 to 6 p.m. Admission is free to both the show and bourse. The bourse will feature close to a dozen dealers with a variety of stamps and other supplies collectors may need.

Chairing the exhibition are Robert V. Carlzon and Dr. Stewart Ritchie.

The 'Drop Out' Dream

AWAY FROM IT ALL. By Sloan Wilson. Putnam's. $6.95.
 At 46, novelist Wilson was fat, restless, a heavy drinker, and pretty well fed up with his friends. What was worse, he was getting hung up in his writing, right at a time when he was having tax troubles.
 But that was a couple of years ago. Wilson made the break out of this mad, mad world and did what he always wanted to do, live aboard a boat—not just for a cruise, but as a regular home. First he let the lease expire on the Manhattan apartment where he, his young second wife Betty and their 2-year-old daughter were living, and began searching for a boat he could afford. He finally bought an old, diesel-powered, 54-foot yacht.

Onto the Bahamas
 The ultimate goal was the outer islands of the Bahamas. But first Wilson had to gain experience in handling the yacht which he did by sailing down the inland route to Florida. He soon found that boats and engines are cantankerous things; he developed a painful ailment, and he nearly blew his stack when his ebullient Irish father-in-law paid the Wilsons a visit.

 But there were compensations in the adventure of living as they pleased, and although it turned out that the Bahamas weren't their cup of tea, they discovered a compromise way of living, and are still on the boat.
 There are lots of laughs in this book—Wilson's skill as a novelist bring them out well—but there are also some things to think about. For what the dreamer discovered in pursuing his dream was that if life can't be idyllic, at least it can be satisfying.
 Miles A. Smith

JAMES GARNER stars in the comic western, "Support Your Local Sheriff," a Cherokee Production which started Wednesday at Mayfair Theatre. Screen veteran Walter Brennan plays his 110th film role in the production.

CLARK GABLE as Rhett Butler and Vivien Leigh as Scarlett O'Hara, one of the screen's most memorable love teams, as they appear in David O. Selznick's production of Margaret Mitchell's "Gone With the Wind." The film is playing now at Kingston's Community Theatre.

Support Your Local Sheriff

Gold, we are often reminded, is where you find it, and when Prudy Perkins, the Mayor's little girl finds it in a grave but recently dug to receive the remains of the guest-of-honor at a recent boot hill necktie party, things start moving with zest and vigor.

The result is Cherokee Production's hilarious "Support Your Local Sheriff" which United Artists, A transamerica Corporation, has brought to the Mayfair Theatre in Color by DeLuxe.

It stars James Garner in the top role, and its stellar cast includes Joan Hackett as the mayor's little girl aforesaid, and Walter Brennan, Harry Morgan and Jack Elam are co-starred in support.

Handsome Garner essays the role sheriff in the title, the role in fact which caused William Bowers to call his highly successful story "The Sheriff" when it first appeared in print. Bowers adapted his story for the screen and was also the producer of the picture which was directed by Burt Kennedy.

While still a frequent and popular performer in pictures, Garner has been most recently engaged in putting his production company Cherokee on the road, and his present vehicle is his first fully independent venture under that banner.

"Support Your Local Sheriff" also marks a giant step forward for lovely Joan Hackett. Already regarded as one of Hollywood's most popular feminine stars, Miss Hackett burst upon the film scene and captured it immediately and unconditionally with her incisive portrayal of "Dottie" in United Artists' recent "The Group."

"Support Your Local Sheriff" marks the 110th film role for durable Walter Brennan, who has been in show biz now for 46 years without a sign of a let-up.

Gone With the Wind

"Gone With the Wind," acclaimed worldwide as one of the great motion picture entertainments of all time, is now presented by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in new Wide-Screen and Metro-color splendor, giving even greater power to the unforgettable love story.

It is currently featured at the Community Theatre, Kingston.

This marks the sixth release since David O. Selznick's production of "Gone With the Wind" made motion picture history with its world premiere in Atlanta, Georgia, in December of 1939. The picture was last released during the civil War Centennial year, 1961. The current presentation brings the epic drama to a younger as well as older generation of motion picturegoers as a colorful and exciting new experience in sight and sound.

Starring Clark Gable, Vivien Leigh, Leslie Howard and Olivia de Havilland, winner of ten Academy Awards, and seen to date by a combined international audience of 295,000,000 persons, "Gone With the Wind" is now being shown as a roadshow attraction.

The history of "Gone With the Wind" is one of the most fascinating in the annals of movie-making. Margaret Mitchell's romantic novel of the South during Civil War days has remained a best-seller over the years in every language. It was purchased by Selznick for a then record sum of $50,000.

The motion picture public unanimously selected Clark Gable for the role of Rhett Butler. The demand for Gable as the dashing Southerner was so great that no other actor was ever considered. The selection of Vivien Leigh for Scarlett O'Hara came after an exhaustive two-year search and tests of well-known stage and screen feminine stars and unknowns alike.

A total of 1,400 actresses were interviewed, with 90 actually tested. It is an interesting side note that "Gone With the Wind" brought fame to many. Among those tested was a young New York model. She didn't get the role but was to become famous later as Susan Hayward.

The massive picture has 59 major speaking roles. Thousands of extras were used in spectacle scenes. The most elaborate and still acclaimed as a classic of filmmaking was the burning of Atlanta. The city as it was in 1864 was authentically created on 40 acres at the Selznick Studios in Culver City, California. Of the picture's 90 sets, 50 buildings alone were designed and erected in recreating Atlanta.

No Second Chance

The scene had to be filmed in a single "take" without mishap. There would be no second chance. No available

EARLY NEW ENGLAND family life, much of which centered around the great log fireplaces in the great, old houses, will be one of the topics discussed during a special spring weekend this month at Old Sturbridge Village in nearby Sturbridge, Mass.

'Innocent Diversions' Of New Englanders

Old Sturbridge Village, New England's nearby center of living history, has announced a special spring weekend on Saturday and Sunday, April 26 and 27 when hundreds of persons will hopefully assemble for a series of programs entitled "Innocent Diversions: a Social Portrait of New England."

The weekend offers a special opportunity for participants to delve into the pastimes and amusements, interests and social customs of early New England.

"Innocent Diversions" will bring together authorities in such historical fields as popular custom, literature, biography, music, sports and dance, who will discuss the variety of favorite pursuits, entertainments and concerns of New Englanders during the late eighteenth and early nineteenth century.

Program in Full

The program for the weekend which commences at 10 a. m. April 26, follows:

Saturday morning, April 26—"Welcome and Comments", Alexander J. Wall, president, Old Sturbridge Village; "New England's Alcoholic Past", Gerald Carson, author, social historian, Millerton, N. Y.; "Rounders, Fives and Skittles — Village Sports and Amusements", Guy Lewis, associate professor of physical education, University of Massachusetts. Saturday afternoon—"The Goodales of Marlborough: A New England Family Library", Barnes Rizinik, vice president, Old Sturbridge Village and "Fire Clubs and the Social Principle in New England", John D. Cushing, librarian, Massachusetts Historical Society. Saturday evening "Jigs & Reels & Country Dances" will be performed by Richard Castner, dance historian of Cambridge, Mass., and his dance group.

Topics on Sunday morning, commencing at 10 o'clock will include "The Beecher family: A sampling of Moral and Religious Evolution and Revolution", Joseph S. Van Why, curator, The Stowe-Day Foundation, Hartford, Conn. and "Memento Mori—Early New England Mourning Customs", C. R. Jones, associate curator, New York State Historical Association, Cooperstown, N. Y.

Old Sturbridge Village presents "Innocent Diversions" in keeping with its educational purpose to preserve and present the past. Reservations for the weekend are necessary and may be made through the Secretary of Special Events, Old Sturbridge Village, Sturbridge, Mass.

Spring Concert Area Highlight

The Spring Concert of the Mount Saint Mary College Concert Choir will be presented Saturday, April 19 at 8:15 p.m. under the auspices of the College Cultural Centre. Joining with the choir for this event will be the Fairfield University Glee Club, Fairfield, Conn.

Both the choir and the glee club are completing successful seasons. The Concert Choir, under the direction of Sister Joanne d'Arc, O.P., has sung at several area events and presented a Christmas concert with the Holy Cross College Glee Club. It recently hosted the Catholic Intercollegiate Women's Glee Club Festival.

The Fairfield Glee Club, directed by Simon Harak, has appeared in Connecticut, New York, Massachusetts, Chicago, Ill., and Detroit, Mich., during the 1968-69 season. The group has received numerous awards including first place trophies in two successive years at the Catholic Inter-collegiate Glee Club Festival.

Tickets for the Spring Concert are available by calling Mount Saint Mary College Cultural Centre, Newburgh.

Banquet at Kurta's

A gala annual banquet is being planned by the Kingston Camera Club for May 7 at Kurta's Restaurant. At that time, new officers of the local photography group will be installed and begin serving their terms of office.

Recently elected to head the KCC for the 1969-70 season were: Gene Patryk, president; Sol Holtzman, first vice-president; Mary Patryk, second vice-president; Martha Cole, treasurer; and Roy Casella, secretary.

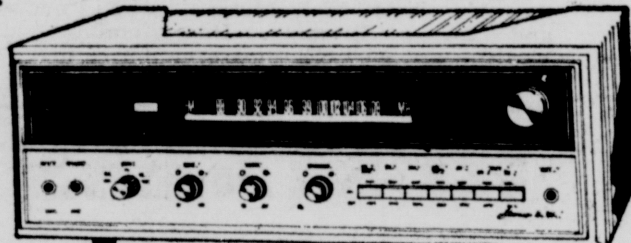

STAN WIEST is a triple threat performer, who excels as pianist, vocalist and actor. A frequent visitor at the Tillson home of his aunt, Helen Banach, he had three well-received record releases last year, including "A Taste of Soul" and "Look at the Bright Side;" has appeared at such posh Manhattan clubs as Gatsby's, 300 Club, Plaza Hotel, and Apartment. He proved a big draw in the Hamptons at the Canoe Place Inn; has toured with Frankie Lymon, Dodo Green, and the Ink Spots. Area residents may have caught his performance at the Tropical Inn, but his most recent stint has been at the Carlton House Hotel on New York's Madison Avenue. WKNY has been pushing his latest record release and, if present plans work out, the whole country will be seeing him soon on such TV programs as those hosted by Joe Franklin, Merv Griffin and Lawrence Welk.

Entronic Hi-Fi Center Presents the SCOTT® 344C 125 Watt FM Stereo

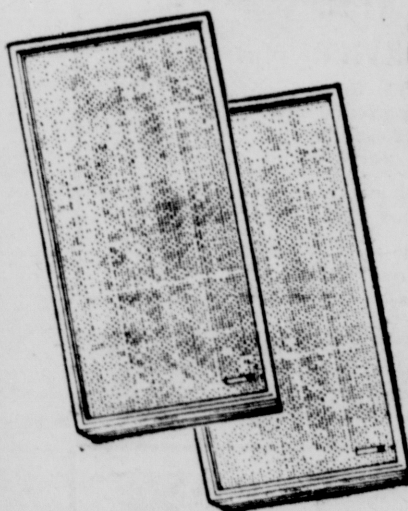

Scott's 344C has the performance and features you'd expect from a far more expensive receiver: FET front end, integrated Circuit IF strip, computer type pushbutton switches, dual speaker switches, direct coupled silicon output amplifier, and interstation muting. JONATHAN FRID, known to millions of avid viewers as "Barnabas," exposes Kathryn Leigh Scott to some of that old vampire charm in scene from "DARK SHADOWS." Frid, of course, is the resident vampire on ABC's afternoon chiller-diller series. Largely because of his presence, the serial has become a roaring hit and the surprise success of 10, these many seasons. The darling of soap opera loving matrons, Frid's also the latest rage among teenagers, who dig him as much as they do the Beatles, the Monkees, Donovan or Tom Jones. Just about everybody has been fanatic about Frid since he first lifted the lid on his coffin.

Television

If you weren't up by 6:30 this a.m. to see Kingston's Jean Fox in "Happy, Forward!" on WNBC-TV Ch. 4, get a good night's rest tonight; it's to be repeated Sunday at 7:45 a.m., same channel.

As for best bets for the rest of the week:

Sunday, April 20

TOURNAMENT OF CHAMPIONS (Ch. 7-8, 3:30 p.m.) The 17th annual Tournament of Champions is telecast Saturday and Sunday from LaCosta (Cal.) Country Club. Coverage begins on the 13th green.

TONY AWARDS (Ch. 4, 10 p.m.) Diahann Carroll and Alan King host the 1969 Tony Awards, telecast from New York's Mark Hellinger Theatre. The ceremonies include numbers from three "Best Musical" nominees: "Promises, Promises," "1776" and "Zorba".

Monday, April 21

BABAR THE ELEPHANT (Ch. 4, 7:30 p.m.) — The entire evening is covered with specials from beginning to end and the most charming is the lead-off, an animated version of the popular kiddie book, Babar, the Elephant. The same producers who give us the Charlie Brown specials are responsible for this and they use one very interesting technique in the beginning. Instead of simply animating the characters, they open a book of Babar and begin telling the story of having the characters come to life and move across the page. Each scene requires a turn of the page, giving the youngsters the feeling that he or she is being read to, and by one of the best readers in the world, Peter Ustinov. Babar is the story of a young elephant whose mother is killed by hunters and who later leaves the jungle for adventures in Paris. He becomes quite civilized and returns to the jungle, where he marries and brings his civilized ways to all the animals. The youngsters will love it.

FRANCIS ALBERT SINATRA DOES HIS THING (Ch. 2-3, 9 p.m.) "I don't know what my thing is, but it must be clean if they let me do it on television," says the star of Francis Albert Sinatra Does His Thing. Of course, his thing is to sing, which he does here often and well. The timelessness of the Sinatra talent is exhibited in songs from the '40s to the present day. It was all shot in a studio except for one filmed fantasy, a story that includes "It Never Entered My Mind" and "Gone With the Wind." Diahann Carroll is Frank's special guest, soloing "The Music That Makes Me Dance" and joining the star for a medley of spirituals. An added feature is the 5th Dimension, a quintet that becomes a sextet when Sinatra joins them, costumed in a wild sequined suit. REPEAT

SPOON RIVER ANTHOLOGY (Ch. 2-3, 10 p.m.) Theatrical excellence is achieved with the filmed adaptation of the dramatization of Edgar Lee Masters classic Spoon River Anthology. However, such a qualification is not always conducive to the attraction of a mass television audience, which may be the case tonight. It is less an adaptation than most, utilizing an almost stark stage, very little make-up and scenic effects, relying mainly on the acting and the lines of the poet. Jason Robards, Jr., Joyce Van Patten, Charles Aidman and Jennifer West characterize several dear departed Spoon River residents, giving thoughts and reflections on their lives and times. Charles Aidman, who adapted the work, says of it, "If I had to pin it down, I'd call it a dramatic revue, a kind of 1910 Peyton Place." Folk songs, woven through the readings of the poetic epitaphs, are sung by Hal Lynch and Naomi Caryl Hirshhorn.

Tuesday, April 22

NBC WHITE PAPER (Ch. 4, 7:30 p.m.) Ordeal of the American City—November 1968: simultaneous strikes by students and teachers paralyze San Francisco State College. At issue: student demands for black and ethnic studies; increased enrollment of minority-group members; teachers' salaries and work loads.

VARIETY SPECIAL (Ch. 13, 8 p.m.) Give My Regards to Off-Broadway—Eli Wallach and Anne Jackson host this fifth annual fund-raising special to benefit Ch. 13, New York's public education television station. Viewers may phone in pledges. Guests will include: Angela Lansbury, Lotte Lenya, Herschel Bernardi.

Wednesday, April 23

CBS NEWS SPECIAL (Ch. 2-3, 10 p.m.) The Japanese—An unusual look at Japan with ex-ambassador to Japan Edwin O. Reischauer narrating.

Thursday, April 24

MUSIC SPECIAL (Ch. 5, 7:30 p.m.) "Gettin' It All Together," a one hour musical special featuring the talents of Booker T. and the MG's, Sam and Dave, and Carla Thomas. These artists combine to make an electric hour of musical entertainment known as "The Memphis Sound." The nation's number one soul duo, Sam and Dave, team up with the Fantastic Soul Men for "I Thank You," "Soul Man," "Hold On, I'm Comin'," and "You Don't Know Like I Know."

PROJECT 20 (Ch. 4, 7:30 p.m.) Meet George Washington—An historic portrait of the President and the man, narrated by Melvyn Douglas.

BOOKS

Family Relationships Explored

A SHARK-INFESTED RICE PUDDING. By Sylvia Wright. Doubleday. $4.95.

There are three stories in this book. Their subject matter—family relationships—seems of more interest to women readers than to men, but their style is of interest to everyone who admires writing talent.

"Mothers and Fathers" is a story of an old man and his wife who have come from Greece to America to visit their son and daughter-in-law while the old man receives treatment—unsuccessful—for cancer. There is an interplay of the generations and of differing cultures.

"Dans le Vrai" is an introspective story about an old maid who has had to accommodate her life—rather resignedly, and with a touch of melancholy—to visits with her sister and a woman friend, while she looks back on a lost love affair.

The title story is a fluctuating series of scenes and memories, in which a woman summons up (through old letters and photographs) the life of several generations in an old summer house on an island.

Miss Wright utilizes an unusual narrative technique. She keeps shifting the viewpoint of the narrator from one person to another, and at times there are such subtle shifts of time and place that one viewpoint blends into another. It is a little like the montage effect with a camera. At times she even brings the author to the front of the stage for a moment as she suspends the narrative. The device usually is effective, but occasionally it is a little baffling.

In her use of imagery, both visual and aural and in her ability to create an empathy between the reader and her characters, she has a poet's touch.

Going Gourmet

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

One of the most diversified menus we've ever seen (destined to crumble good intentions of the diet-conscious) is offered at Dominick's Restaurant in New Paltz.

The American-Italian cuisine boasts such gastronomical delights as Filet Mignon with Mushroom Caps, "Honey Dipped" Southern Fried Chicken, "Surf and Turf" favorite, London Broil with Mushroom Gravy at only $4.75, $2.50, $4.95 and $3.25, respectively. Entrees are served with choice of vegetable and potato or side order of spaghetti, homemade Italian bread (garlic bread's available at a wee bit extra) crisp tossed salad with choice of dressing. Appetizers run the gamut from homemade soup, to Antipasto for two at $1.75; from Pimento and Anchovies at $.85 to Baked Clams at $1.25.

For the seafood-minded, there's Broiled Lobster Tails, Shrimp Creole with rice, Combination Seafood Platter, Broiled Brook Trout, just to name a few, all served with choice of potato and vegetable or side of spaghetti.

Specialties include Veal Cutlet Ala Parmigiana, Veal Scallopini, "Italian Style" Beef Tenderloin-Saute, Eggplant ala Parmigiana, Baked Homemade Lasagna, Ravioli, Baked Manicotti.

Dominick's special complete Italian dinner from soup du jour through Bisque Tortoni for $5.75 has a memo from chef: "Please do not order the above unless your appetite is up to it."

Calorie-counting customers can cheat a bit while relaxing in the seclusion of the contemporary dining room, designed with the patrons' comforts in mind. Incidentally, much of the cozy decor is credited to Dominick's wife whose flair for the artifice is especially evident by the wall painting of an old-fashioned lady, complete with parasol, who greets mesdames inside the entrance to the Powder Room. (Gentlemen escorts will have to take our word for that particular work of art.)

Renovations are now being completed and among innovations will be a dance floor with music available for private parties. And parties can be private at Dominick's, as the 240-capacity dining room may be divided into three separate areas insuring the utmost in "social" seclusion. Greens, browns and golds abound, providing a setting that's both harmonious and conducive to relaxation.

Desserts are presented separately from the regular—and we must add, reasonable bill of fare—listing tantalizing tidbits one feels compelled to order, sometimes out of inquisitiveness to see "what it looks like."

Last time we dined at Dominick's we noted an exceptionally trim young lady and escort who sat fondling the menu and scanning the list of goodies... Cafe Parfait with Tia Maria... homemade baked custard... strawberries a-la-whipped cream. With eagle eyes we watched to see what she'd order and we kid you not when we tell you it was jello. Now that's willpower, personified, and most likely the reason she was well-trimmed.

Crafts' Open Meeting Scheduled at Paltz

Area residents and students interested in the crafts are invited to attend an open meeting from 8 to 10 p.m. Friday, Apr. 25, in the Faculty Lounge, tenth floor of the Faculty Tower Building, at the State University of New York College at New Paltz.

Topics for discussion include earning a living in the crafts, producing and teaching, function of juries in craft shows and organization of student groups. Special guests will be potters Ronald Burke of Rock Tavern Pottery and John Masson of Conway, Mass.

Persons attending are invited to bring a piece of their own work for evaluation by professional craftsmen including board members of the York State Craftsmen, a state wide membership organization which is sponsoring the open meeting. The group is holding its quarterly directors meeting at the College at New Paltz April 25 and 26.

Local chairman for the Friday evening program is Miss Prudence Burg of the art education faculty. Presiding will be Kurt Matzdorf of the art faculty, assisted by Kenneth Green and Susan Wisherd, also faculty members.

The York State Craftsmen are nationally known for their annual Craft Fair held the first week in August at Ithaca College. This year's event, the sixteenth annual, is scheduled for August 4 through 9 and will explore in detail the working philosophy of the craftsmen. The week-long exhibition will feature display and sale of members' work as well as an extension program of workshops, seminars, lectures and demonstrations. A new feature this year will be a photography workshop where craftsmen can learn techniques of photographing their work.

Potpourri

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

"Hey, hey! Ho-ho!"

If you've ever played "charades" at a Dale Carnegie class, you'll know that's not the jolly greet giant sounding-off; if you haven't cut caper at the establishment, we think you've missed the boat.

Thirty-eight localities are really going pixie about it. There are Mueller and Millers, Ruth, Barbara and Kathy, that is; there are roofers, IBMers, construction workers, bankers, musicians and housewives—oops, pardon us, household executives. And, honest-Injun, there's a real Indian, Atma Baweja (complete with turban) . . . one of those gentleman foreigners oozing with charisma who could teach the course instead of taking it.

Hank Stingel's a student—no relation to Casey—as is his wife Ginny who calls herself his "old bat." What with German, Holland, Greece, and England-born recruits, one feels undressed without an accent. However, Boston-born Tom Mulvaney's been able to hold his own in that department.

By 11 p. m. open-house night, some 50-plus students were on surname-basis with each other. And with names like Bohan Mazur, Udo Glotsch, Gerbon Hookstra, and Jan Peischel, that's a feat not to be sneezed at. It was easy to remember Jan's name 'cause it sounds like a pie shell; but there's a joker in every crowd—imagine calling her Jan Piecrust!

BCI investigator John Salters has forgotten more action-packed happenings than most have lived through, and his two-minute talks run the gamut from pot-raids to a third-degree public-servant experience on the Thruway that he wants to forget. Boy, was John's face red!

Don Wright broke up everyone with a childhood tale of his first piano-recital. After watching two little girls perform—they were the utmost in perfection—he imitated their every movement right to the bitter end when instead of bowing he curtsied.

"Coming Out of Your Shell" session and "The Duke of York" warm-up, designed to help one relax, has dual effect of making members feel like candidates for the funny farm but since everybody's doing it, it's less kookie.

Even with a fractured foot, John Chase makes every meeting—crutches and all—by 7:01, open sesame time. England's Barbara Miller helps Schenectady instructor Bob Burns feel right at home with expressions straight from the moor. . . "Yes, Love . . . No, Love."

Speaking of Burns, Smith-Parish's John Burns' wife Doris is so hung-up about demonstration-session she baked goodies for take-10-time; hubby John's a "graduate," you know. Dan Slater and Bob Breitenstein are both from Smith-Parish, too. That Company's going to have the best-speaking roofers around here; and what a place to practice public-speaking undisturbed. Bobby Gentry has nothing on Dan; you should hear his Ode to a Beer Can Opener!

The Lovingers, Milton and Sadie, arrive each week from Kerhonkson; Paul Klun's busy winning inscribed pencils for "most improved;" and Joe Naccarato brought handmade guitar to class to dramatize his talk. Oh, it's a going group!

As for Dale Carnegie rep, Hal Schultz, can't decide whether Space Odyssey's computer-pilot Hal was named after him or visa versa, but anyone who's watched "our" Hal perform at those sessions knows he's right out of orbit.

The Big War Documented on Film

The fine arts film series at Bennett College, Millbrook, will concern itself next Tuesday evening, (April 22) with documenting war. The program, to which the public is invited, will take place in Matthison-Kennedy Auditorium beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The first of three pictures will be "Battle of San Pietro," made in 1944 under Office of War Information auspices as one of its "incentive films"—that is, a report to the soldiers on the state of the war. Conceded to be one of the finest war documentaries, it was directed by Major John Huston, photographed by Capt. Jules Buck and Army Signal Corps cameramen, and produced by the Army Pictorial Service.

"Le Retour," produced by the U.S. Information Service, was photographed by Henri Cartier Bresson, Andre Bac, and Signal Corps and Air Force cameramen. Bresson and Richard Banks edited it and, since it was made after the war (1946), it is freer of government control than earlier war documentaries, with the viewpoint essentially Bresson's. It has been called "the greatest human documentary to come out of the war." Commentary is in French, with no English titles.

"War Games," produced in 1963, is not actually a documentary in form but has been included in the program for its subject matter. It was written, directed, photographed and its music composed by Donald Richie, film critic and historian of Japanese film. It is his statement on the nature of conflict.

camera crane was large enough to cover the scene, in which 1,200 extras appeared. A shipbuilding crane was delivered to the studio from Seattle to serve as a towering camera platform. Residents of Culver City, attracted by the thousands, still recall the mounting excitement of the spectacle. Flames roared and shot 200 feet into the air as Atlanta burned with a realism rarely equalled on the screen.

This is only one of literally hundreds of memorable scenes in the three-hour, 40-minute epic motion picture. More than 3,000 sketches alone were made for the sets and wardrobe. A total of 449,512 feet of film was exposed, with 160,000 feet printed.

At the Academy Award ceremony in 1940, "Gone With the Wind" received a then record ten Oscars and special awards, not exceeded until MGM's "Ben-Hur" won eleven awards in 1959.

The awards for "Gone With the Wind" were for best picture, Vivien Leigh as best actress, Hattie McDaniel as best supporting actress, Victor Fleming as best director, plus best screen play, best art direction, best editing, best color photography, a special award for production design and the Irving C. Thalberg Award to Selznick for outstanding production achievement.

"Gone With the Wind" has been re-released by MGM over the years to new generations and growing audiences. Millions have again thrilled to the picture each time it has been presented. Today, it is an acknowledged classic of motion picture making.

Art Guild to Meet

Rondout Valley Art Guild will meet Monday, April 21, at 8 p.m. at Wenig's Restaurant, Napanoch.

At the Academy Award ceremony in 1940, "Gone With the Wind" received a then record ten Oscars and special awards, not exceeded until MGM's "Ben-Hur" won eleven awards in 1959.

The awards for "Gone With the Wind" were for best picture, Vivien Leigh as best actress, Hattie McDaniel as best supporting actress, Victor Fleming as best director, plus best screen play, best art direction, best editing, best color photography, a special award for production design and the Irving C. Thalberg Award to Selznick for outstanding production achievement.

"Gone With the Wind" has been re-released by MGM over the years to new generations and growing audiences. Millions have again thrilled to the picture each time it has been presented. Today, it is an acknowledged classic of motion picture making.

Learning Letters

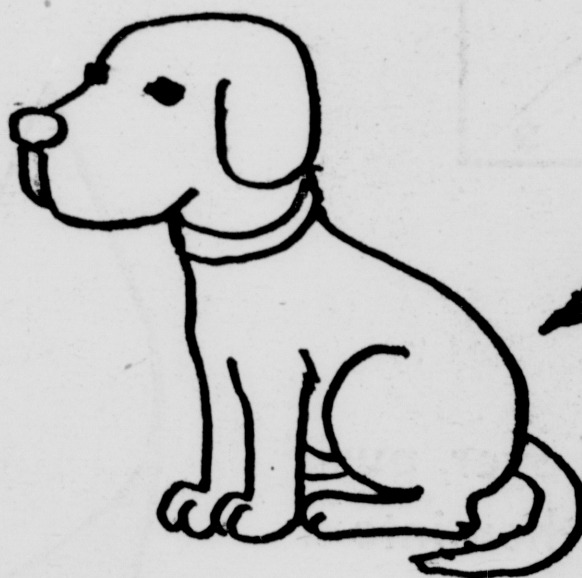

All the missing words begin with D. Can you complete the words?

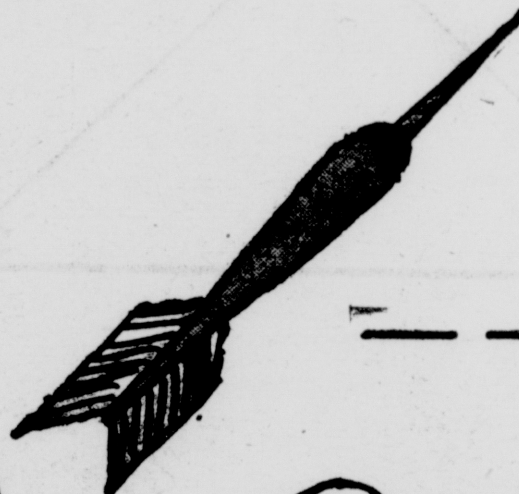

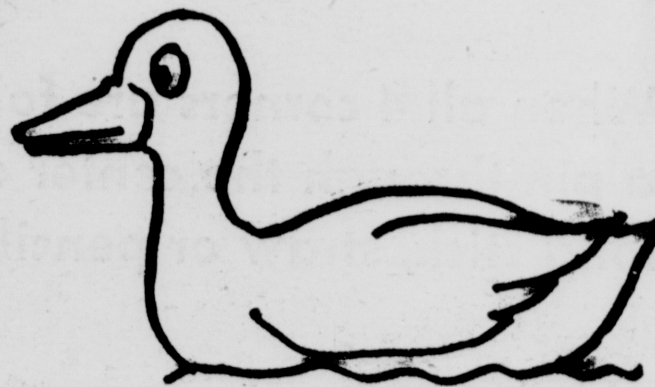

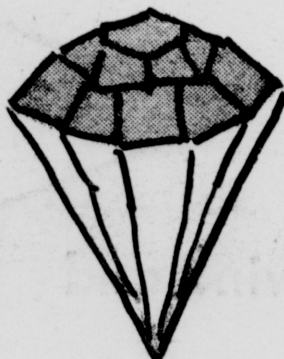

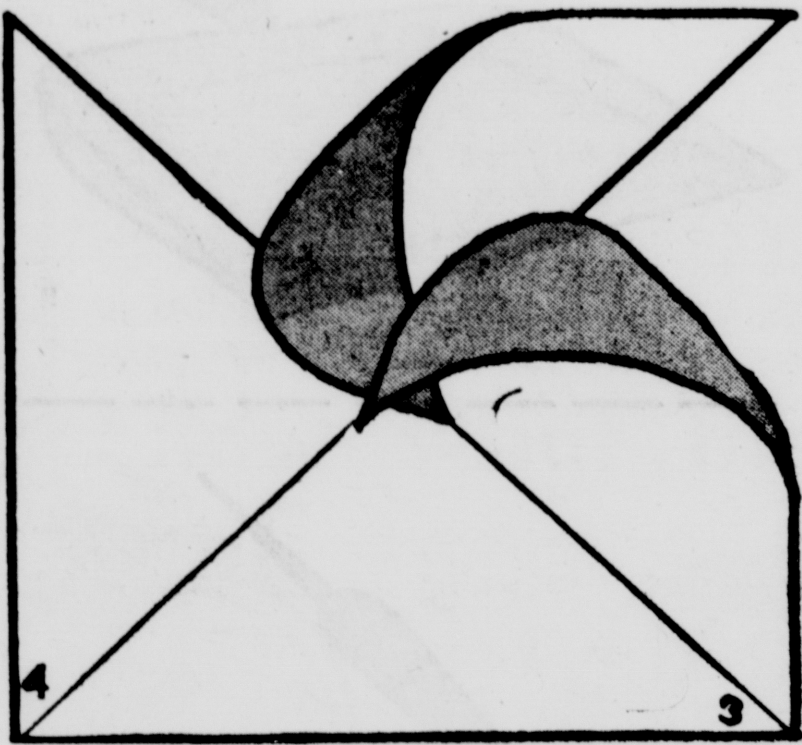

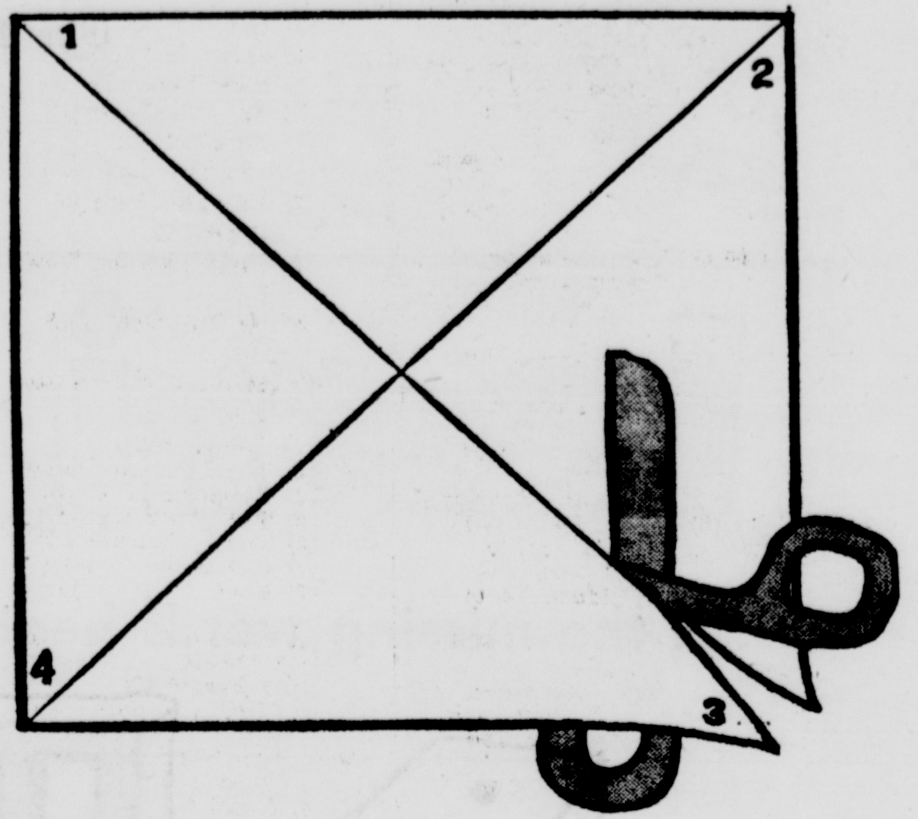

MAKE A PINWHEEL

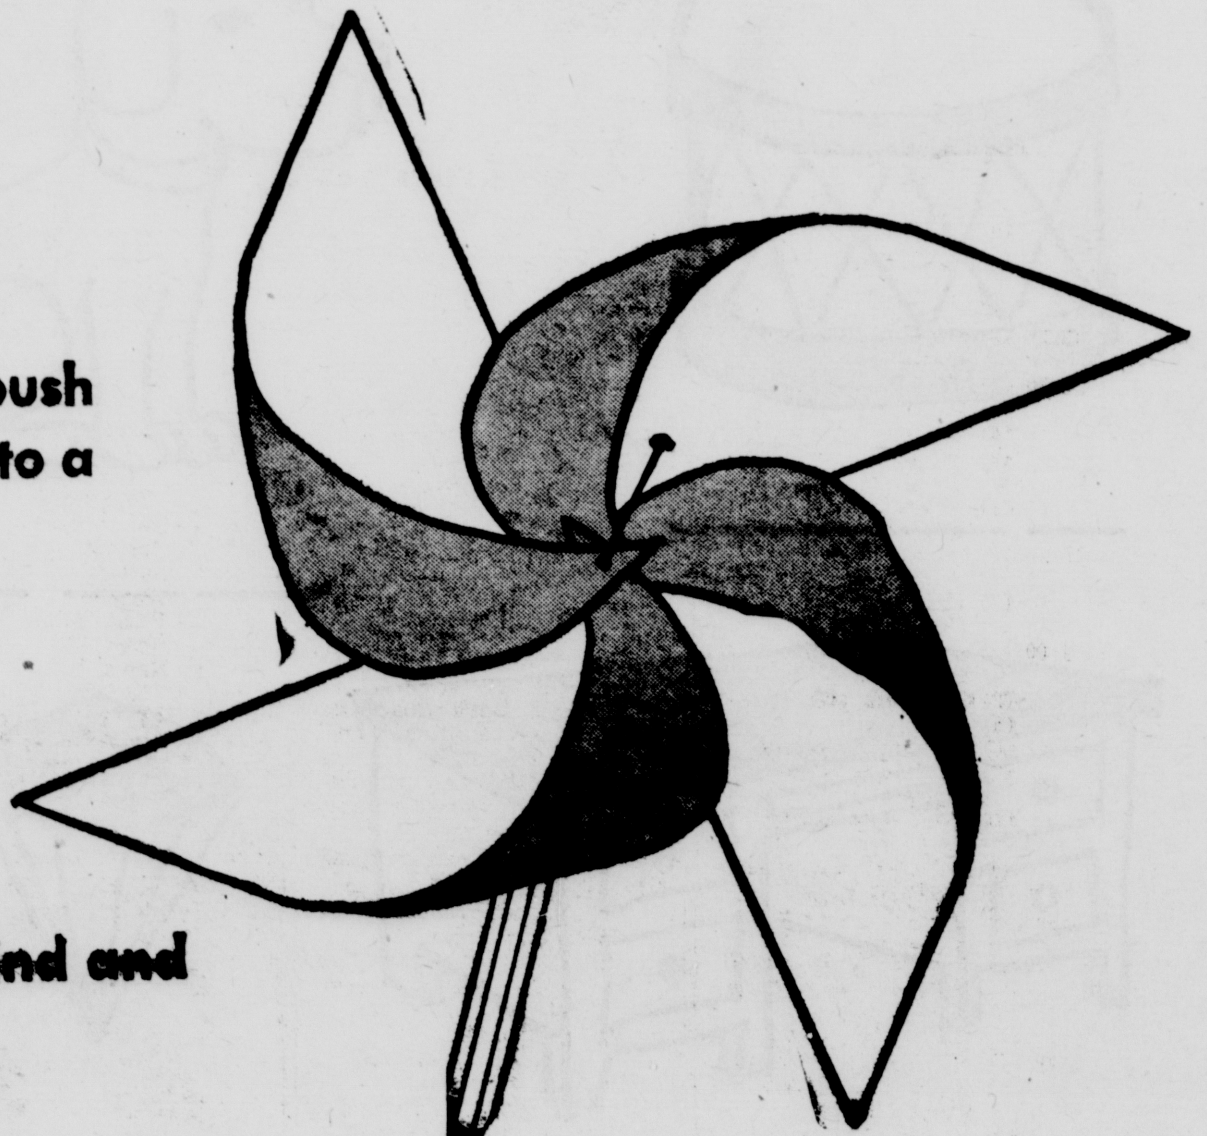

Start with a square piece of heavy paper. Draw straight lines from corner to corner, then number each corner like this.

With your scissors, cut along each line toward the center, but be sure not to cut all the way to where the lines cross.

Bend corner number 1 toward the center. Do the same with corners 2, 3 and 4, holding each one in place as you do the next one.

When all 4 corners are folded over, push a pin through the center and then into a long stick, straw or pencil.

Now hold your pinwheel into the wind and watch it spin.
